Lui P. Butlalts

Common Senfe.

442 c
coney 2.
(5xin) monnenato
(?)

COMMON SENSE;

ADDRESSED TO THE INHABITANTS
A. M E R I C A, on the following interefting S U B J E C T S.

1. Of the Origin and defign of Government in general, with concife Remarks on the Erighth Conftitution.
II. Of Monarchy and Hereditary Succeffion.
III. Thoughts on the prefent State of American Affairs. .
IV. Of the prefent Ability of America, with fome mícellaneous Reflections.

A NEW EDITION, with feveraladditions in the Body of the Woik. To which is added an APPENDIX ; together with an Addrefs to the People called QU AKERS.
N. B. The new Addition here given increafes the Work upwards of one Third.

Man knows no Mafer fave creating Heaven, Or thofe whom Choice and common Good ordain.

Thompson.

Philadelphia Printed: Newbury-Port, Repinted, for Samuel Philidips, jun. of Andover.
8  40
chemmathicica

  ..... 1

 .....  ..... 0.11 .....  ..... 0.11

(8)
as

vi
428
488
$A$
$A$
 ..... $2 \mathrm{x}-\mathrm{y} 15$

INTRODUCTION.

PERHAPS the fentiments contained in the following pages, are not yet fufficiently fathionable to procure shem general favour; a long habit of not thinking a thing zurong, gives it a fuperficial appearance of being right, and sailes at fist a formidable outcry in defence of cuttom. But the tumult foon fubfides. Time makes more converts than reafon.

As a long and violent abule of power, is genalally the Means of cailing the right of it in queftion (and in Matters too which might never have been thought of, had not the Sufferers been aggravated into the inquivy) and as the King of E gland hath undertaken in his own Right, to fupport the Pariament in what he calls theirs, and as the good people of this country are grievoully oppreffed by the combination, they have an undoubted privilege to enquire into the pretentions of both, and equally to seject the ufur. parion of either.

In the following fheets, the author hath fudioully avoided every thing which is perfonal among ourfelver. Come plimentgas well as cenfure to individuals make no pars thereof. The wife, and the worthy, need not the triumph of a pamphlet; and thofe whofe fentiments are injudicious, or unfriendly, will ceafe of themfelves uniefs too much pains are beftowed upon their converfion.

The caufe of America is in a great meafure the caufe of all mankind. Many circumftances hath, and will arife, which are not loca!, but univerfal, and through which the principles of all Lovers of Mankind are effected, and in the Event of which, their Affections are incerefted. The laying a Country defolate with Fire and Sword, declaring War againft the natural rights of all Mankind, and extirpating the Detenders thereof from the Face of the Earth is the Concern of every Man to whom Nature has given the power of feeling ; of which Clafs, regardlefs of Party Genfureg is the

$$
\text { A } U T H O \text { R }
$$

INTRODUCTION

P. S. The Publication of this new Edition hath been Belayed, with a View of raking notice (had it been neceffary) of any Attempt to refute the Doctrine of Indeperdance: As no Anfwer hath yet appeared, it is now prefumed that none will, the Time needful for getting fuch a Performance ready for the Public being confiderably paft.

Who the Au hor of this Production is, is wholly unne ceffary to the Public as the Object for Atrention is the Doc* brine itfelf, not the Man. Yet it may not be unnecef Sary to lay, That he is unconnected with any Party, and under no fort of I fluence public or private, but the indo ence of reafon and princip'e.

Pbiladelpbia, Fsbruary 14, 1776.

COMMON SENSE.

Of the origin and defign of government in gene; ral. With concile remarks on the Englifa cora? flitution.

SOME writers have fo confounded fociety with goverw. ment, as to leave litie or no diffinction between them. whereas they are not only different, but have different origins. Society is produced by our wants, and government by our wickednefs; the former promotes our happinefs poo fitively by uniting our affections, the latter negatively by refitraining our vices. The one encourages intercourfe, the oiher creates diftinctions. The fift is a patron, the laft a punifher.
Society in every ftate is a bleffing, but government even in its beft fate is but a neceffary evil ; in it's worft fate an intolerable one; for when we fofter, or are expofed to the fame miferies by a government, which we might expect in a country without government, our calamity is heightened by Iffecting that we furnifh the means by which we fuffer, Government like drefs, is the badge of loft innocence; the palaces of king; are built on the ruins of the bowers of paradife For were the impulfes of confcience clear, uniform, and irrefiftably obeyed, man would need no other lawgiver : but that not being the cafe, he finds it neceffiry to furrender up a part of his property to furnifh means for the protection of the reft; and this he is induced to do by the fame prudence which in every other cife advifes him out of two evils to choofe the leaft. Wherefore, fecurity being the true defign and end of government, it unanfwerably follows that whatever form thereof appears moft likely to infore it to usg with the leaft expence and greateft benefit, is preferable to all others.

In order to gain a clear and jual idea of the defign and end of government, let us fuppofe a fmall number of perfons feta tled in fome fequefiered part of the earth, unconnected with the reft, they will then reprefent the firft peopling of any country, of of the world. In this flate of natural liberty, fociety will be their fiff thought. A thoufand motives will excite them thereto, the firength of one man is to unequal to his wants, and his mind fo unfitted for perpetual rolitudes that he is foom obliged to feek affiftance and relief of another, who in his turn requires the fame. Four or five united would be able to raife a tolerable dwelling in the midt of a wildernefs, but one man might labour out the common period of life spithout accomplifing any thing; when he had Gelled his timber he could not remove it ; nor ereet it after it was removed; hanger in the mean time would urge hint from his work, and every different want call him a different way. Difeafe, nay even misfortune would be death, for though neither might be morta), yet either would difable him from living, and reduce him to a fate in which he might sather be faid to perifh than to die,

COMMON SENSE.

Thus neceffity, like a gravitating power, would foon form our newly arrived emigrants into fociety, the reciprocal blefGings of which wou'd fuperfede, and render the obligations of law and government annectflary while they remained perfectly jut to each other ; but as nothing but heaven is ime pregnable to vice, it will unavoidably fiappen that in proportion as they furmount the fift difficulties of emigration, whick bound them together in a common eaufe, they will begin to relax in their duty and allachment to each other : and this remiffers will point out the neceffiy of effablifhing fome form of government to fupoly the defect of moral vir ue.

Some convenient tree will afford them a Siate Houre, under the branches of which the whole colony may affemble to deliberare on public matters. It is more than probable that their fift laws will have the title only of Regulatio ONs and be enforced by no other penalty than public dife. fleem. In this firt parliament every man, by natural rightis. will have 2 feat.
But as the colony increafes, the publie concerns will ind sereare likewife, and the diffance at which the members may be fegarased, widl rencer is too inconvenient far all of them

COMMON SENSE.

$t 0$ meet on every occafion as at firft, when their number was (mall, their habitations near, and the public concerns few and trifing. This will point out the convenience of their confensing to leave the legiflative part to be managed by a felect number chofen from the whole body, who are fuppofed to have the fame concerns at fiake which thofe have who appointed them, and who will act in the fame manner as the whole body would aet were they prefent. If the colony continue increafing, it will become neceffary to augment the pumber of the reprefentatives, and that the interef of every part of the colony may be attended 10 , it will be found beft to divide the whole into convenient parts, each part fending its proper number; and that the elected might never form ta themfelves an interefl feparate from the eleciors, prudence will point out the propriety of having elections often; becaufe as the elected might by that means return and mix again with the general body of the clectors in a few monihs. their fidelity to the public will be fecured by the prudent reflexion of not making a rod for themfelves. And as this frepuent interchange will eftablith a common intereft with every part of the community, they will mutually and naturally fupport each other, and on this (not on the urmeaning name of king) depends the flrength of government, and the bap cinefs of the governed.

Here then is the origin and rife of government; namely, 2 mode sendered necellary by the inability of moral virtue to govern the world ; here too is the defign and end of government, viz. freedom and fecurity. And however our eyes may he dazzled with thow, or our ears deceived by found; however prejudice may warp our wills, or intereft darken our underftanding, the fimple voice of nature and of reafon will fay, it is righs.

I draw my idea of the form of government from a principle in nature, which no art can overturn, viz. that the more fimple any thing is, the lefs liable it is to be difordered, and the eafier repaired when difordered ; with this maxim in view 1 offer a few remaiks on the fo much baiffed conftrution of England. That it was noble for the dark and flavifhs times in which it was erected, is granted. When the world was over-run with syranny the leaft remove therefrom wess

10

 COMMON SENSE.a glorious refcue. But that it is imperfect, fubject to como vulfions, and incapable of prodacing what it feems to prow mife, is eafily demontrated.

- Abflute governments (ho ihe difgrace of human nature) have this advantage with them, that they are fimple; if the people fuffer, they know the head from which their fuffering fprings, knom likewife the remedy, and are not bewildered hy a variety of caufes and cures. But the conflitution of. England is fo exceedingly complex, that the nation may fuffer for years together without being able to difcover in which part the fault lies, fome will fay in one and fome in anoher. and evety political phyfician will advife a differ. ent medicine.

I know it is difficult to get over local or long fanding prejudices, yet if we will fuffer curfelves to examine the component parts of the Englifh conftitution, we thall find them to be the bale temains of two ancient tyrannics, compounded with fome new republican materials.

Firf, - The remains of monarchical cyranny in the perfon of the king.

Secondly, - The remains of arifocratical tyranny in the perfons of the peers.

Thirdly. - The new republican materials, in the perfons of the cummons, on whole virtue depends the freedom of England.

The two firft, by being hereditary, are independent of the people; wherefore in a confitutional fenfe they contribute nothing towards the freedom of the fate.

To fay that the confitution of England is a union of three powers reciprocally shecking each other, is farcical, either the words have no meaning, or they are flat contradictions.

Tofay that the commons is a check upon the king, pre* fuppofes two tbings.

Firf. - That the king is not to be trufted without being looked after, or in other worts, that a thirft for abfolute power is the natural difeafe of monarchy.

Secondly. - That the commons, by being appointed for that purpofe, are cither wifer or more worthy of confidence than the crown.

But as the fame coufitution which gives the commons a power power to check the king by witholding the fupplies, gives afterwards the king a power to check the commons, by ens. powering him to reject their other bills; it again fuppofes that the king is wifer than thofe whom it has already fuppofed to be wifer than him. A mere abfurdits!

COMMONSENSE.

There is fomethingexceedingly ridiculous in the compofition of monarchy; it firt excludes a man from the means of information, yst empowers him to act in cafes where the higheft judgment is required. The fate of a king fhurs hims from the world, yet the bufinefs of a king tequites him to know it thoroughly; wherefore the diffe:ent parts, by unnesurally oppofing and deftroying each other, prove the whole sharacter to be abfurd and ufelefs.

Some writers have explained the Englifh conflitution thus; the king, fay they, is one, the people another; the pzers are an houfe in behalf of the king; the commons in benall of the people; but this hath all the diftinctions of an houle disided againftitelf; and though the expreffions be pleafartly arranged, yet when examined they appear idle and ambiguous; and it will always happen, that the niceft conftruction that words are capable of, when applied to the defcription of fomething which either cannot exift, or is too incom. prehenfible so be within the compals of deícription, will be words of found only, and though they may amufe the ear, they cannot inform the mind, for this explanation includes a previous queftion, viz. How came the king by a pawer which the people are afraid to truft, and always obliged to check? Such a power could not be the gift of a wife peopie, netther can any power, which needs thecking, be from G d ; yet the provifion, which the conftitution makes, fuppofes fuch a power to exift.

But the provifion is unequal to the tak; the means cither cannot or will not accomplinh the end, and the whole affair is a telo de fe; for as the greater weight will always carry up the lefs, and as all the wheels of a machice are put in motion by one, it only remains to know which power in the conftitution has the moft weight, for that wifl govern; and though the others, or a patt of them, may clog, or as the phrafe is, check the rapidity of it's motion, yet fo long as they cannot fiop it, their codcavours will be incfic. thal!

J8 COMMONSENSE.

tual ; the firft moving power will at laft have it's way, and what it wants in feeed is fupplied by time.

That the erows is this overbearing part in the Englifh conftitution neecis not to be mentioned, and that it defives its whole confequence merely from being the giver of places and penfions is felf evident, wherefore, though we have been wife enough to fhut and lock a door againft abfolute monarchy, we at the rame time have been foolifh enough to put the crown in poffeflion of the key.

The prejudice of Englifhmen, in favour of their own government by king, lords and commors, arifes as much or more from national pride than teafon. Individuals are undoubtedly fafer in Eng'and than in fome other countriss, but the will of the king is as much the law of the land in Britain as in France, with ihis d:fference, that inftead of proceeding direetly from bis mou:h, it is handed to the people undes the more formidable thape of an act of pariiament. For the fate of Charles the firtt, hath only made kings more fubile - not more juft.

Wherefore, laying afide all national pride and prejudice in favour of modes and forms, the plain truth is, that it is qubolly owing to the confitution of the people, and not to the confiifution of the government that the crown is not as op. preffive in England as in Turkey.

An inquiry into the confitutional errors in the Englifh form of government is at this time highly neceffary; for as we are never in a proper condition of doing juffice to others, *hile we continue under the influence of fome leading parsiality, fo neither are we capabe of doing it to ourfelves while we remain fetered by any obflinate prejudice. And 36 a man. who is attached to a profitute, is unfited to choofe a judge of a wife, fo any prepoffefion in favour of a sotten conflitution of government will difable us from difceining a good one.

Of monarchy and hereditary fucceffion.

MANKIND being originally equals in the order of creation, the equality could only be defiroyed by fome fubfequent circumftance ; the diftinetions of rich and poor may in a great meafure be accounted for, and that without without having recourfe to the harfh ill founding names of oppreffion and avarice. Oppreffion is often the confequences but feldom or never the mean of riches; and though avarice will preferve a man from being neceflitoully poor, it generally makes him too timorous to be wealihy.

COMMONSENSE.

But there is another and greater difinction for which no truly natural or religious reafon can be affigned, and that is the difinetion of men into Kings and subjets. Male and female are the diftinctions of nature, good and bad the diftinctions of heaven; but how a race of men came into the world fo exalted above the reft, and diftinguifhed like fome new fpecies, is worth enquiring into, and whether they are the ineans of happinefs or of mifery to mankind.

In the early ages of the world according to the fcripture chronology, there weie no kings; the confequence of which was there were wo wars; it is the pride of kings which throws mankind into confufion. Holland wihout a king hath enjoyed more peace for this laft century than any of the monarchical governments in Europe. Antiquity favors the fame rematk; for the quiet and rural lives of the firt patriarchs hath a happy fonething in them, which vanifhes away when we come to the hiltory of Jewifh royalty.

Government by kings was firt introduced into the world by the Heathens, from whom the claidren of Ifrael copied the cuftom. It was the moft profperous invention the Devil ever fet on foot for the promotion of idolatry. The Heathens paid divine honors to their decealed kings, and the chiftian world hath improved on the plan by doing the fame to their living ones. How impious is the title of facred majefty applied to a worm who in the midit of his fplendar is crumbling into duf!

As the exalting one man fo greatly above the teft cannot be juftified on the equal rights of nature, fo neither can it be defended on the authority of feripture; for the will of the Almighty, as declared by Gideon and the prophet Samuel, exprefsly difapproves of Government by kings. All antimonarchical pares of fcriprure have bcen very fmoothly glorfed over in monarchioal governments, but they undoubtedly metit the attention of coundies which have their governments yet to form. "Render unto Cafar the things which are Cosfar's" is the fcripture doctrine, of courts, yer it is no fupport if monarchial government, for the $J$ ews at that time Were without a king, and in a ftate of vaflaliage to the Romans.

14 COMMON SENSE.

- Near three thoufand years pafled away from the Mofaic account of the creation, till the jews under a national delufion requetted a king. Till then their form of government (except in extracrdinary cales, where the Almighiy interpofed) was a kind of republic adminiftered by a judge and the elders of the tribes. Kings they - had none, and it was he'd finful to acknowledge any being ander that title but the Lord of Hofts. And when a man fericunly reflects on the idolatrous homage which is paid to the perfons of kings, he need not wonder that the Almighty, ever jealous of his honor, thould difapprove of a form of government which to impioully invades the prerogative of heaven.

Monarchy is ranked in fcipture as one of the fins of the Jews, for which a curfe in referve is denounced againft them. The hiftory of that tranfaction is worth attending to.

The Children of Ifrael being oppoffed by the Midianites, Gideon marched againtt them with a fmall army, and victosy, through the divine interpofition, decided in his favour. The Jews elate with fuccefis, and atributing it to the generalfhip of Gideon, propofed making kim a king, faying, Rule thou over us, thou and thy fon, and thy fon's fon. Here was temptation in it's fuileft exient; not a kingdom only, but an hereditary one, but Gideon in the piety of his foul replied, $I$ will not rule over you, neitber fall my fon rule aver you, THe Lord shall rule over you. Words need not be more explicit; Gideon doth not decline the honor, but denieth their right to give it; neither doth he compliment them with invented declarations of his thanks, but in the poftive fite of a prophet charges them with difaffection to their proper fovereign, the king of heaven.

About one hundred and thiriy years after this, they fell 2gain into the fame error The bankering which the Jews had for the idolarrous cuftoms of the heathens, is fomething exceedingly unaccountable; but fo it was, that laying hold of the mifeonduct of Samuel's two fons, who were entruited with fome fecular concerns, they came in an abrupt and clamorous manner to Samuel, faying, Behold thou art old, and thy fons walk not in thy ways, now make us a king to judge us like all the other nations. And here we cannot but obferve. that their motives were bad, viz. that they might be likg unto other nations, i. e. the Heathens, whereas their true glory laid in being as much unlike them as poffible. Bue the thing difpleafed Samuel when tbey faid, Give us a king to judge us; and Samuel prayed unto the Lord, and the Lord faid unto Samuel, Hearken unto the vaice of the people in all that they fay unto thee, for thev bave not rejecied thee; but they bave rejected me that I should net reign over THE M. According to all the works which they bave done fince the day that I brougbt them up out of Egypt, even unto this day; wherewith they bave forfaken me and ferved otber Gods; fo do they alfo unto thee, Now therefore bearken unto their voice, bowbeit, protef folemnly unto thim and jow them the manner of the king that Jhall reign over them, $i, e$. not of any parricular king, but ine general manner of the kings of the earth, whom Irrael was fo eageriy copping after. And notwithtandiog the great diftance of time and difference of manners, the character is Atill in fafhion, And Samuel told all the words of the Lord unto the people, that afked of him a king. And he faid, this fall be the manner of the king that Soll reign over you; be will tak? your fons and appoint them for bimfelf, for bis chariots, and to be bis bor femen, and fome Jall run before bis chariots (this defcription agrees with the prefent mode of imptefing men) and he will appoint bim captains over thoufands and captains over fifties, and will fet them to ear his ground and to reap his barvef, and to make bis in. firuments of ar, and inftruments of his chariots; and be will take your daughters to be confectionaries, and to be cooks and to be bakers (this defcribes the expence and luxury as weil as the opprefinon of kings) and be will taks your fields and your olive yards even the beft of them, and give them to bis fervants; and be will take the tentb of your fied, and of your vineyards, and give them to bis officers and to bis fervants (by which we fee that bribery, corruption and favouritilm are the Randing vices of kings) and be will take the tenth of your men fervants, ond your maid Sorvants, and your goadlieft young mon and your afles?

16 COMMONSENSE.

affis, and put them to bis work; and be will take the tenth of your foecp, and ye foall be bis fervants, and ye fall cry out in that day becoula of jour king wobich ye folll bive chofen, AND the Lord will not hear you in that day."This accourts fa the contiouation of monarchy; neiber do the characters of the few good kings which have lived fince, either fanctify the tile, or blot out the finfuinefs of the origin; the high encomium given of David takes no notice of him offcially as a king, tut only as 'a man after God's own heart. Neverthelefs the people refufedt obey the voice of Samuel, and they faid nay, bw we will burle a king aver us, that we may be like all the nations, aind that our king may judge. ws, and goout before us, and figbr our battles. Samvel cuntinued to reafon with them, but to no puy pofe; he fer before them their ingratitude, but all wou'd not avail; and feeing them fully bent on their folly, he cried out, I will call unto the Lord, and be frall fond tbunder and rain (which then was a punthment, being in the time of wheat harveft) thet you bave dene in the Jggit of the Lord, in a sking yod A King. So Samuel calld znso the Lord, and the Lord font thunder and. sain that day, and all the prople greatly feared the Lord and Samuel. And all the people faid ubto Samuel, pray for thy fervants unta the Lard thy God that we die'not, for We HAve added unto our sins thisevil, to ask a King. Thefe portions of fcifiture are direet and pofitive. They admit of no equivocal 'conftruction. That the A'mighty hath here enieted his protef againft monarchical government is true, or the faripture is faife. And a man ha: h good seafon to believe that there is as much of king-craft, as prieft-craft, in withelding the feriplure from the public in popilh countries. For monarchy in every inftance is the popery of government.

To the evil of monarchy, we have added that of herecitary fucceffion; and as the fits is a degradation and leffiening of ourfelves, to the fecond, claimed as a matier of sight, is and infult and an impcfition on poflerity. For all men being originally equals, ne one by biris could have a right to fet up his own family in perpetual preference to all others for ever, and thouga himfelf might deferive fome decent degree of honors honors of his cotempraries, yet his defcendants might be far too unwarthy to inherit them. One of the frongeft netural proofs of the folly of hereditary tight in kings, is, that nature difapproves it, otherwife the would not fo frequently surn it into ridicule by giving mankind an afs for a lion.

COMMON SENSE.

Secondly, as no man at firf couid poffels any other public honors than were beftowed upon him, to the givers of thofe honors could have no power to give away the right of polterity, and though they might fay "We choofe you for our head," they could not without manifeft injuftice to their children, fay, "that your children and your children's children thall reign over ours for ever. Becaufe fuch an unwife, unjust, uanatural comract might (perhaps) in the next fucceffion put them under the government of a rogue orsa fool. Muft wife men, in their private fentiments, have ever treated hereditary right with contempt; yet it is one of thofe evils, which when once eftablifted is not e fily removed; many fubmit from fear, others from fuperftion, and the more powerful part thares with the king the plunder of the reft.

This is fuppofing the prefent rare of kings in the world to have had an honorable origin; whee e s it's more than probabe, that could we take off the dark covering of antiquity, and trace hem to their filf rife, that we thuud frod the fift of them nothing better than the principal ruffian of fome reftefs gang, whofe lavage manners or pre emi.e ce in fubtiity obtained bim the title of chief am ng pundeers; and who by increafing in power, and extending his depreda itions, overaw d the quiet and defencelefs to purchale their fafery by frequent contributions. Yet his electors could have no idea of giving hereditary right to his defcendants, becaufe fuch a perpetual excufion of themfelves was incompatible with the free and unreftrained principles they profeffed to live by. Wherefore, hereditary fucceftion in the early ages of monarchy could not cake pace as a matter of ciaim, but as fomething cafual or complimental; but as few or no records were extant in thofe days, and traditionary hiftory ftuffed with fables, it was very eafy, atter the lapfe of a few generations, to trump up fome fuperfitious taie conveniently timed, Mahomet like, to cram hereditary right down the throats of the vulgar. Perhaps the diforders which theatened or feemed to shreaten, on the deceafe of a lazder and the choice of a new one (for eections among ruffians could not be verp orderly) induced many at fi $f$ to favour he editary pretenfions; by which means it happened, as it haih bappened fince, hat what at fift was fubmitted to as a convenience, was aflerwards claimed a righr.

38 COMMON SENSE.

England, fince the conquef, hath known fame few good monarchs, but groaned benea:h a much larger number of bad ones; yet no man in his feafes can fay that their claim nuder William the Conqueror is very bonorabe one. A French baflard landing with an armed banditi, and eftabithing himfelf king of Engtand againft the confens of the natives, is in plain terms a very paltry raically original It cortainly hath no divinity in ir. However, it is head efs io fpend much time in expofing the foily of hereditary right, if there areany fo weak as to believe it, let them pronifuscully worthip the afs and lion, and welcome. I Ball neithes copy their humili $y$, nor diturb their devotion.

Yet I Thould be glad to ank how thes fuppofe kings came at firf ? the queftion admits but of three anfwers, viz. either by lot, by election, or by ufurpation. If the find king was raken by lot, it eftablifhes a precedent for the next, Which excludes hereditary fucceffion. Saul was by loty yet the fucceftion was not hereditary, neither does it anpear from that iranfaction there was any intention it ever thould. If the firf king of any country was by election, that like. vife efablimes a precedent for the next; for to fay, that the gight uf all future gencrations is taken away, by the at of the firt e'cetors, in their choice not only of a king, but of an family of kings for cyer hath no parallel in or out of ferip. fore, but the doctrine of origisal fin, which fuppofes the fiee witl of all men lof in Adam; and from fuch comparifon, ant it will admit of no oher, hereditary fucceffon can desive no glory: For as in Adam all finned, and as in the fi a clecturs all men obeyed; as in the one all mankind vecfubjeded to latan, and in the other to fovereignty; as our inacence was lot in the fift, and our authority in the lat ; and as bout difable us from re aftuang fome former hate and privilege, it unanfwerably follows that original fin and hereditary fuccefion are parallels. Dinonnrabie rank! Inglorious connexion! Yet the moft fubale Ruphift cannot produce a jufter fimile.

COMMONSENSE.

As to ufurpation, no man will be fo hatdy as to defend it; and that Wiliam the Conquerer was an ufuper, is a fact not to be contradicted. Ihe plain truth is, that the antiquity of Englth monarchy won't bear looking into.

But it is not fo much the ablurdity as the evil of heredifary facceffion which concerns markid. Did it infure a race of good and wife mew it would have the feal of divine zubbrity, but as it opens a door to the foolifh, the wicked, and the improper, it hath in it the nature of opprefilort. Men who look upon themfelves born to reign, and others to obey, foon grow iafolent relected from the ret of mankind, their minds are early poifoned by importance; and the world they aet in d.ffors fo materially from the woild at large, tha? they have but litie oppotiunity of knowing ita trus interefts, and when iney fucceed to the goverament, are frequensly the moft ignorant, and unfic of any throughaut the dominions.

Anotherevil which attends hereditary fucesfion in, that the throne is fubject to be pr fiffed by a minor at any age; all which time the regency, actitg under the eover of a itiag have every opportuniry and inducemant to betray their suft. The fame naional misforiune happens, when a king worn out with age and infirmity, eners the laft dage of human weaknefs. In both thefe cafes the public become a prey to every mifereant, who can tamper fucceffsully with the follies either of age or infancy.

The moft plaufible ples, which hath ever been offered in favor of hereditary fuccefion, is, that it preferves a nation from civil ware; and were ihis crue, it would be weighty; whereas, it is the mon bare faced fs'fi $y$ ever impofed upon mankind. The whote hiftory of England difowns the fact. Thitty kings and two minors have reigned in that diffacted kingdom fince the conqueft, in which time tbere have been (including the Revolution) to lefs than eigh: civil inars and nineteen rebelions. Wherefore inflead of making for peace, it makes againft it, and deRroys the very foundation it feems 10 ftand on.

10 COMMONSENSE:

The conteft for monarchy and fucceffion, between the houres of Yotk and Lancafter, laid England in a feehe of hlood for many years. Twelve pitched battles, befides fkirmithes and fieges, were fought between Henry and Ed= ward. Twic was Henry prifoner to Edward, who in his turn was pifoner to Henry. And fo uncertain is the fate of war, and the temper of a nation, when nothing but perfonal maters are the ground of a quarrel, that Henry was taken in triumph from a prifon to a palace, and Edward obliged to fly from a palace 10 a foreign land; yet, as rudden tranfitions of temper are feldom lafting, Henry in his turn was driven from the throne, and Edward recalled to fucceed him. The parliament always following the strongett fide.

This conteft began in the reign of Henry the fix:h, and was not entirely exinguifhed sill Heary the feventh, in whom the families were unied. Including a period of 67 years, viz. fiom 1422, to 1489 .

In (hort, monarchy and fucce ficion have laid (not this or that kingdom only) but the world in blood and afhes. ${ }^{3}$ Tis a form of government which the word of God bears isttimony againft, and blood will attend it.
If we erquire into the bufinefs of a king, we fhall find that in fome countries they have none; and after fauntering 2way their lives without pleafure to themfelves, or advantage to the nation, withdraw from the fcene, and leave their fucceffors to tread the fame idle round. In abfolute monarchies the whole weight of buinefs, civil and military, lies on the king; the children of Itrael, in their requeft for a king, urged this plea "that he may judge us, and go out before us and fight our battles." But in countries where he is nei her a judge nor a general, as in Englands a man would be pizzled to know what is his bufinefs.

The neater any government approaches to a republic the lefs bufinefs there is for a king. It is fomewhat difficult to find a proper name for the government of England. Sir William Meredith calls it a republic; but in its prefent flate it is unworthy the name, becaufe the corrupt influence of the ctown, by having all the places in its difpofa), hath foefe fectually fwallowed up the power, and caten out the virtue of the houfe of commons (the repub'ican part in the conAtruti n) that the government of England is nearly as monarchical as that of Fiance or Spain. Men fall out with names without underfanding them. For it is the republican and not the monatchical part of the conftitution of Engiand which Englithmen glory in, viz. the liberty of choufing an houfe of commons from out of their own bov: dy-and it is eafy to fee that when republican virtue fails, flavery enfues. Why is the confiution of England fickly, but becaufe monarchy bath poifoned the republic, the crown hath engexfed the commons?

In England a king hath little more to do than to make war and give away places; which in plain terms, is to impoverifh the nation and fet it together by the ears. A pretsy butinefs indeed for 2 man to be allowed eight hundred thouland fterling a year for, and worthiped into the bargain! Of more worth is one honeft man to fociety and in the fight of God, than all the crowned ruffians that ever lived.

Thoughts on the prefent ftate of American affairs.

IN the following pages I offer nothing more than fimple facts, plair arguments, and common fenfe; and have no other prelimioaries to fettle with the reader, than that he will diveft himfelf of prejudice and prepoffeflion, and fuffor his reafor and his feelings to determine for themfelves; that he will put on, or rather that he will not put off, the true character of a man, and generoully enlarge his views bexond the prefent day.

Volumes have been vritten on the fubject of the fruggle between England and America. Men of all ranks have embarked in the controverfy, from different motives, and with various defigns; but all have been ineffectual, and the period of debace is clofed. Arms, as the laft refource, decide the conteft ; the appeal was the choice of the king, and the continent hath accepted the challenge.

It hath been reporied of the late Mr. Pelham (who tho an able minifter was not without his faults) that on his being attacked in the houfe of commons, on the fcore, that bis meafurts were on'y of a temporary kind, replied they will laf my time." Should a thought fo fasal and unmanm by poffefs the colonies in the prefent conteft, the name of anceftors will be remembered by fuiuse generations with deteftation.

The fun never thined on a caufe of greater worth. 'Tis sot the affair of a city, a county, a province, o: a kingdum, but of a continent-of ar leaft one eigh h pazt of the inabitabe g!obe. 'Tis nof the concem of a day, a year, of an age ; pofterity are virtually involved in the conteft, and will Le more or lefs affected, even to the end of time. by the proceedings now. Now is the feed time of continenal union, fath and honor. The leatt fracture now will be like a name engraved with the point of a pin on the tender. rind of a young oak; the wound will enlatge with the tree, and pofterity read it in full grown characters.

By referring the mater from argument to arms, a new a) a for poivics is firuck; a new merhod of thinking hath atifen. All plans, propufals, &: prior to the nineleenth of April, i. e. to the commencement of hoftilities, are like the almanacks of the laft year ; which, though proper then ${ }_{3}$ are fuperceded and ufelels' now. Whatever was advanced by the advocates on either fide of the quefion then, terminated in one and the fame point, viz a union whith GreatBritain; the only difference between the parties was the me hod of effecting it ; , he one propefing force, the other friendhip; but il bath fo fa: hagpened that the firf hath failed, and the fecond hath withdrawn her influence.

As much hath been faid of the advantages of reconcilia ticn, which, like an agreeable dream, bath patied away and left us as we were, it is but right, that we fould examine the contrasy fide of the argument, and irquire into fome of the many material isjuries which thefe colonies fuftaing. and alseays will fuftain, by being connecled with, and de. pendant on Great-Britain. To examine that connexion and dependance, on the principles of nature and common fenfe, to tee what we bave to truft $t 0$, if reparated, and what we are to expect, if dependant.

I have heard ir, tiferted by fome, that as America hath fourifhed under her former connexion with Great Britain, that the fame connexion is aecefiary towards hei future hap.

COMMONSENSE.

pinefs, and will alwavs have the fame effet, Nothing can be more fallacious than this kind of argument. We may as swe!! affere that becaufe a child has thrived upon milts, thas it is never to have meat, or that the firt twenty years of our lives is to become a precedent for the next twenty. But even this is admitting mose than is twe, for I anfwer round'y that America wou'd have flourithed as much, and and probably much more, had no Essropean power had any thing to do with her. The commerce, by which the hath enriched herfelf are the necsffacies of life, and will always have a market while eating is the cufom of Europe.

But the has protected us, fay fome. That the hath en: groffed us is true, and defended the continent at our expence as well as her owna is admitted, and the would have defended Turkey from the fame motive, viz. the fake of trade and dominion.

Alas, we have been long led away by ancient prejudices, and made large facifices to fuperftition. We have boafted the protection of Great Bitain, wirhout confidering, that her motive was interef, not atlachment; that fhe did not protect us from our enemies on our account but from Ber enemies on ber own account, from thole who had no quarrel with us on any otber account, and who will always be cur enemies on the fame account. Leir Bitain wave her preterfions th the continemi, of the cominent throw cff the deperdance anć wo thouid be at peace wish France and Spain were they at war with Britain. The miferics of Hanner laftwar ought 10 warn us againt connexions.

It hath lately been afferred in parliament, that the colo* nies have no relation to each other but through the parent country, $i$. e that Pennfyivania and the Jerfeys, and fo on for the reft, are filter colonies by the way of England; this is certainiy a very round about way of proving re'ationthi $p_{3}$ but it is the neareft and only true way of proving enemyOhip, if I may focall it. France and Spain never were, nor perhaps ever wili be our enemies as Anericans, but as our being the fubjects of Great Britain.

But Butan is ihe parent country, fay fome. Then the more thame upon her conduet. Even bruies do not devour ther young, nor lavages make war upon their lamilies; wherefore wherefore the affertion, if true, turns to her reprozch; bu\} fit happens not to be true or only partly fo, and the phrafe parent or mother country hach been jefuitically ad pred by the king and his parafites, with a low papifical defign of gaining an unfair bias on the ciedulous weakn fof of our minds. Europe, and not Eng and, is the parent country of America. This new world hath been the alyom for the perfecuted lovers of civil and retigious libery from every part of Europe. Hither have they fled, not from the tender embraces of the mother, but from the cruelty of the monfter; and it is fo far true of Ergland, that the fame eyranny which drove the firf emigrants from home, purfues their defcendants flill.

24. COMMON SENSE.

In this extenfive quarter of the globe, we forget the narrow limits of three hundied and fixty miles (be extent of England) and carry our friendhip on a larger fcale; we claim brotherhood with every European chriftian, and iri. umph in the genercfity of the fentiment.

It is pleafant so oberve by what regular giadations we furmount the force of local prejudice, as we enlarge oor acquaintance with the world. A man bon in anv town in England divided into parifhes, will naturally : fficiate moft with his fellow parifheners-(becal fe their interefts in many cales will be common) and diftinguifh him by the same of neigbour; if he meet bim but a few miles from home, he drops the narrow idea of a ftreet, and falutes him by the name of town fman; if he travel out of the cunty, and meet him in any other, he forgets the minor divifions of fireet and town, and cal's him countryman, i. e. coumty-man; but if in their foreign excuifions they would affociate in France or any other part of Europe, their local remembrance would be enlarged into that of Englißmen. And by a juft parity of reafuning, al Europeans meering in America, or any other quarter of the globe, ate countrymen; for bigzand, Holland, Germany, or Sweeden, when compared wihthe whole, ftand in the fame places on the larger fcale, which the divifions of itreet, town, and county do on the fmaller ones; diftiections too limired for consinental minds. Not one third of the inhabizants, even of this province, are of Einglifh deicent. Wherefo: I ieprobate the phrale of parent or mo her country appiied to Eagland onty, as being falfe, felfith, patrow and ugenerous.

COMMONSENSE.

Bu! admilting, that we were all of Englifh defcent, what does it amount to ? Nothing. Brisain, being now an open enemp, extinguithes every o her name and tite: And ta fay ihat reconciliation is our duty, is truly faccical. The fi: $\mathrm{t}_{\mathrm{k}} \mathrm{king}$ of England, of the prefent line (William theConqueror) was a Frenchman, and half the peers of Engiand are defcendants from the lame country; wherefore by the farse method of reafoning, Eng and ought to be goveined by France.

Much hath been faid about the united ftength of Brio tain and the culonies, that in conjunction they might bid defince to the world. But this is mere prefumption; the fate of wis is uncer:ain, neither do the expreffions mean any thing; for this continent would never fuffer iffelf to bo drained of imbabitants, to fupport the Britifh arms in either Afid, Africa or Europe.

Befides, what have we to do with fetting the world as defiance? Our plan is commerce, and that, well attended to, will fecue us the peace and $F$ iend hip of all Europe becaule, it is the intereft of all Europe to have America a free port Har trade will be always a procection, and hee barrennefs of gid and fiver will fecure her from in vaders.

I challenge the warmeft advocate for reconciliation to thew, a fingle adantage this camtinent can reap, by being connected with Gieat Britain. I repeat the challenge, not a fing'e advantage is derived. Our corn will feech its price in any maket in Europe, and our mported goods muft be paid, for buy them where we will.

But the injuries and difadvantages we fuftain by that con nection, are without number; and our duty so matkind as large, as well as to ourfelves, inftuct us to renounce the alliance: Becaufe, any fubmiffion to, or dependance on Great Britain, tends directy on involve this contment in European wars and quacrels; and fets us at variance with nations, who would otherwite feek out friendifip, and againft whom, we have neither anger nor complaint. As Europe is out market for trade, we ought to form no partial consection with any pars of it. It is the crue intereft of Ame1

26

 COMMONSENSE.sica to fteer clear of European contentions, which the never can do, while by her dependance on Britain, the is made the make weight in the fcale of Britifh politics.

Europe is too thickly planted wish kingdoms to be long at peace, and whenever a war breaks our between England and any foreign power, the trade of America goes to ruin, becau/s of ber connecaion with Britain. The next war may not turn out like the laf, and thould it not, the advocates for reconciliation now will be wifhing for feparation then, becaufe neutrality in that cafe, would be a fafer convoy than a man of war. Every thing that is right or natural pleads for feparation. The blood of the flain, the weeping voice of nature cries, 'Tis time to fart. Even the diftance at which the A migh:y ha:h piaced England and America, is $a$ frong and natura! proof, that the authority of the one 0 ver the other, was never the defign of Heaven. The time likewife at which the continent, was difcovered, adds weight to the argument, and the manner in which it was peopled encreafes the force of it. The reformation was preceded by the difcovery of America, as if the Almighty gracioully meant to open a fanetuary to the parfecuted in future years, when home flhould afford neither friend fhip nor fafely

The authority of Great-Britain over this continent, is a form of goverament, which fooner or later muft have an end: And a ferious mind can draw no true pleafure by looking forward, under the painful and poffitive conviction, that what he calls "the prefent conflitution" is merely temporary. As parents we can have no joy, knowing that this governmont is not fufficiently lafting to infure any thing which we may bequeath to poferity : And by a plain methad of argument, as we are running the next generation into debt, we ought to do the work of it, otherwife we ufe them meanly and pitifully. In order to difcover the line of our duy righty, we fhould take our children in our hand and fix ourflation a few years further into life; that emminence will prefent a profpec, which a few prefent fears and prejudices conceal from our fighr.

Though I would carefully avoid giving unneceffary offence, yet I am inclined to believe, that all thofe who efpoufe the docs ine of reconciliation, may be included within the: following following defcriptions. Interefted men who are not to be trufted; weak men, who connot fee; prejudiced men who will not fee; and a certain fer of moderaie men, who think better of the European world than it deferves ; and this laft clafs, by an ill-judged deliberation, will be the caufe of more calamities to this continent than all the other three.

COMMONSENSE.

It is the good fortune of many to live diftan! from the fcene of prefent forrow; the evil is not fufficiently brought to their doors to make them feel the precarioufuefs with which sil American property is poffeffed. But let our immaginations tranfoort us for a few moments to Bofton, that feat of wretchednefs will teach us wifdom, and inftuct us for ever to renounce a power in whom we can have no truft. The inhabitants of that unfortunate city, who but a few months ago were in eafe and affluence, have now, no other alternative than to flay and ftarve, or turn out to beg. Endangered by she fire of their friends if they continue within the city, and plundered by the Iofdiery if they leave it. In their prefent condition they are prifoners without the hope of redemption, and in a general attack for their relief, they would be expofed to the fury of both armies.

Men of paflive tempers look fomewhat lightly over the offences of Britain, and, ftill hoping for the beft, are apt to call out "Come, come, we gall be friends again, for all this." But examine the paffions and feelings of mankind, bring the doctrine of reconciliation to the iouchftone of nature, and then tell me, whether you can hereafter love, honot, and faithfully ferve the power that bath carried fire and frord into your land? If you cannot do all thefe, then ate you only deceiving yourfelves. and by your delay, bringing ruin upon pofterity. Your future connedion with Britain, whom you can neither love nor honor, will be forced and unnatural, and being formed only on the plan of prefent convenience, will in a little time fall into a relapre more wietched than the firf. But if you fay, you can pafs the violations over, then I afk, hath your houfe been burnt? Has your property been deforoyed before your face? Are your wife and children defiture of a bed to lie on, or bread to live on? Have you lof a parent or a child by their hande, and yourfeif the ruined and wresched furvivor? If you have not, then are you not a jodge of thofe who have. But if you have and can ftil thake hands whe murderers, then are you unwothy the name of buband, father, fitend, or lover, and whatever may be your rank or titie in life, you have the heart of a coward and the fpirit of a fycophant.

28 COMMONSTNSE.

This is not infaming or exaggerating matie:s, but trying them by thofe feelinge and affections which nature juftifies, and without which, we thoud be incapab $c$ of difchatging the focial duties of life, or enj ying the felicutien of it. 1 mean not 10 exhibit horror for the purpore of proveking revenge, but to awaken us from fatal and unany hembers shat we may purfue determinately fome fixed otject, ' 「is not in the power of England of of Europe to corquer America, if the doth not conquer herfelf by delay and timidity. The prefent winter is worth an age if rightiy empioyed, but if loft or neglected, the whole continent will patake of the misforturie; and there is no punifhment which that man doth not deferve, be he who, or what, or where he will, that may be the means of facuficing a feafon io precious and ufeful.
' $\Gamma$ is repugnant to reafon, to the unive fal order of things, to ali examples from former ages, to fuppofe, that this consinent can lorig remain fubject to any external power. I ha moft fanguine in Britain do not think fo. The utmoft ftretch of human wifdom cannot, at this time, compafs a plan fort of a feparation, which can promife the continent even a car's fecurity. Reconciliation is now a fallacious dream. Nature hath deferted the connection, and art cannot fupply her pace. For as Milton wifely exprefles "f never can tiue reconcilement grow, whele wounds of deadiy haie have pierced fo deep."

Every quiet method for peace hath been ineff clual. Our prayers have been rejected with dildain; and only rended to convince us, that nothing flaters vanity, or confirms obfti. nacy inKings, more than repeated peritioning-and nothing hath contributed more than, hat very meatue to make the Kings of Europe abfolute: Winnefs Dinmark and Sweden. Wherefore, fince nothing but blows will do, for God's foke let us come to a final feparation, and not leave the moxt generation to be culting throats, under the violated names of patent and child.

COMMON SENSE.

To fav, hey will never attempt it again is idle and vifionary, we thought fo at the repeal of the ftamp act, yet a year or $(W)$, undeceived us; as well may we fuppofe that nations which have been once defeated will never renew the quaryel.

As 10 gnvenment matters, 'tis not in the power of Britain 10 io this entinent juftice: The bufnefs of it will foom be too weighty and intricate to be managed with any tolerable deyuee of convenience, by 2 power fo diffant from us, and fo very gnorant of us; for if they cannot conquer us, they canhor govern us. To be alsoays running thiee or four thoufand miles with a tale or a petition, waiting four or five moaths for an anfwer, which when obtained, rquires five or fix more to explain it in, will in a few years be lorked upon as folly and childifhnefs-There Was 2 time when it was proper," and there is a proper time for it to ceare.

Small Iffands not capable of protecting themfelves, are the proper objects for government to take under their care: but there is fomething very abfurd, in fuppofing a continent to be perperually governed by an ifland. In no inftance hath nature made the fatellite larger than its primary planet, and as England and America with tefpect to each otnep, reverfe the common or der of na:ure, it is evident they belong to different fyftems. England to Europe: America to itfelf. 1 am not induced by motives of pride, party, or refentment to efpoule the doctrine of feparation and independance. I am cearly, pofitively, and confeientiounly perfuaded that it is the true incereft of this continent to be fo; that every thing thore of that is mere patchwork, that it can afford no la ing felicity-ithat it leaving the fword to our children, &t Onriking back at a sime, when, a litte mote, a litele farther, wo u d have rendered this continent the gloryuf the earti.

As Brtain hath not maniffted the leaft inctination towards a compromife, we may be affured that no terms can be obtained, worthy the acceptance of the continent, or at nv ways equal to the expence of blood and treafure we have been already put to.

The object contended for, ought always to bear fome juft proporion to the expence. The remoyal of North, or the whole whole detefable junto, is a matter unworthy the millions we have expended. A temporary ftoppage of trade, was an inconvenience, which would have fufficiently ballanced the zepeal of all the acts complained of, had fuch repeals been obtained; but if the whole continent muft take up arms, if every man muft be a foldier, it is fcarcely worth our while to fight againft a contemptible miniftry only. Dearly, deally do we pay for the repeal of the aEts, if that is all we fight for; for in a juft eftimation, it is as great folly to pay a Bunkerhill price for law, as land. As I have always confidered the independancy of this continest, as an event, which fooner or later mut arrive, fo from the late rapid progrefs of the continent to maturity, the event could not be far off. Wherefore on the breaking out of hoftilities, it was not worth the whi'e to have difputed a matter, which time would have finally redreffed, unlefs we meant to be in earneft; ctherwifc it is like wafting an effate on a fuit at law, so regulate the trefpaffes of a tenant, whofe leate is juft expiring. No man was a warmer wifher for a reconciliation than myfelf, before the fatal nineteenth of April 1775*, but the moment the event of that day was made known, I rejected she hardened, fullen tempered Pharaoh of England forever ; and difdain the wre'ch, that with the preiended title of FATHER OF HIS PEOPLE CAD unfeignedly hear of their naughter, and compofedly fleep with their blood upon his foul.

30 COMMONSENSE.

Bus admitting that matters were now made up, what would be the event? I anfwer, the ruin of the continent. And that for feveral reafons.

Firf. The powers of governing ftill remaining in the hands of the king, he will have a negative over the whole legiflation of this continent. And as he hath thewn bimfelf fuch an inveterate enemy to liberty, and difcovered fuch a thift for arbitrary power; is the, or is he not, a proper man to fay to thefe colonies, "You foll moke no laws but sebat-I plenfe." And is there any inhabitant in America fo ignorant, as not to know, that according to what is called the prefent confitution, that this continent can make no laws but what the king gives leave to; and is there any man fo nowife, as not to fee, that (confidering what has happened)

[^0]he will fuffer no law to be made here, but fuch as may beft fuit bis purpofe. We may be as effectually enflaved ty the want of laws inAmerica, as by fubmitting to laws made for us in England. After matters are made up (as it is called) can there be any doubt, but the whole power of the crown will be exerted, to keep this continent as low and humble as poffible? Inftead of going forward we thall go backward or be perpetually quarrelling or ridiculoufly petitioning. We are already greater than the king withes us to be, and will he not hereafter endeavor to make us efs? To bring the matter to one point. Is the power who is jealous of our profperity, a proper power to govern us? whoever fays no to this quetion is an independant, for independancy means no more than whether we thall make our own laws, or, whether the king, the greateft enemy this continent hath, or can have, fhall tell us "there ßall be no lacus but fuch as I like. ©

But the king you will fay has a negative in England; the people there can make no laws without his confent. In point of right and good order, there is fomething very ridiculous, that a youth of twenty-one (which hath often happened) thall fay to feveral millions of people, older and wifer than himfelf, I forbid this or that act of yours to be law. But in this place I decline this fort of reply, though I will never ceafe to expofe the abfurdity of it, and only anfwer, that England being the king's refidence, and America not io, makes quite another cafe. The king's negative bere is sen times more dangerous and fatal than it can be in England, for there he will fcarcely refufe his confent to a bill for putting England into as ftrong a ftate of defence as pofilible, and in America he would never fuffer fuch a bill to be paffed.

America is only a fecondary obje $\{$ in the fyftem of Britith politics, England confults the good of this country, no farther than it anfwers her own purpofe. Wherefore her own intereft leads her to fupprefs the growth of ours in every. cafe which doth not promote ber advantage, or in the leaft interferes with it. A pretty ftate we fhould foon be in under fuch a fecond hand government, confidering what has happened! Men de not change from enemies to friends by the alteration of a name: And in order to thew that recoriciliation is now a dangerous dectrine, I offrm, thas it would be policy in the king at this time, to repeal all the cots for the foke of reinfating bimplelf in the government of the provinces; in order, that he may accomplish by Craft and subtilty, in the long run, what he cannct do by force and violence in the short one. Reconciliation and ruin arè nealy related.

Secondly. That as even the befterms, which we can expeet to obtain, ran amount to no mote than a temperary exped ent, or a kind nf government by guaidiar th p, which can laft no longe than till the colonies come of age. to the general face and flate of things, in the interim, will be unfetted and urpromifing. Emigrants of picperty will not choofe to come to a couniry whafe foin of gevervment hangs but by a thread, and who is eveiy day ottering on the brink of commoticn and difturbance; and numbers of the prefent inhabitants would lay hold of the interval, to difpofe of their efficis, and quit the continent.

But the mof powerful of all arguments, is, that nothing but independance, i. e. a contirental form of government can keep the peace of the continent, and preferve it inviolate from civil wais. I dread the event of a recenciliation with Britain now, as it is more than probable, that it will be followed by a revolt fome where or other, the confequences of which may be more fatal than all the malice of Britain.

Thoufands are already ruined by Brition barbarity; (thoufands more will probably fuffer the fame fate) thife men have other feelings than us who have nothing fuffered. All they now poffefs is liberty, what they before enjosed is $f_{2}-$ crificed to its fervice, and having nothing more to lofe, they difdain fubmiffion. Befides, the general temfer of the colonies towards a Britifi government, will be like that of 2 youih, who is nearly out of his time; they will care vesy little about her. And a government which cannot preferve the peace, is no government at all, and in that cafe we pay our noney for nothing; and pray what is it England can do, whofe power will be wholly on paper, fhculd a civil tumult break cus the very day after a reconciliation? I have have heard fome men ray, many of whom, I believe, froke without thinking, that they dreaded an independance, fearing that it would produce civil wars. It is but feldom that our firft shoughts are truly correct, and that is the cafe heres for there is ten times more to dread from a patched up connexion, than from independance. I make the fufferers cafe my own, and I proteft, that were I driven from houle and home, my property deflroyed, and my circumftaces ruined, that as a man, fenfible of injuries, I could never relifh the doctrine of reconciliation, or confider myfelf bound thereby.

COMMONSENSE.

The colonies have manifefled fuch a fpirit of good crder and obedience to continental government, as is fufficient to make every reafonable perfon eafy and happy on that head. No man can alfign the leaft pretence for his fears, on any other grounds, than fuch as are truly childifh and ridiculous, viz. that one colony will ftrive for fuperiority over another:

Where there are no diffinctions there can be no fuperiority, perfect equality affords no remptation. "The'republics of Europe are all (and we may fay always) in peace. Holland ard Swifferland are without wats, foreign or domeflics Monarchical governments, it is true, are never long at reft s the crown itfelf is a temptation to enterprizing ruffians as bome; and that degree of pride and infolence, ever attendans on regal authority, fwells into a rupture with foreign pow. ers, in inftances, where a republican government, by being formed on more natural principles, would negociate the miffake.

If there is any true caufe of fear, refpecting independance, it is becaufe no plan is yet laid down. Men do not lee their way out-Wherefore, as an opening into that bufinefs, I offer the following hints; at the fame time modefly affirming, that I have no other opinion of them myfe f, than that they may be the means of giving rife to fomething better; Could the ftraggling thoughts of individua's be collected, they would frequenty form materials for wife and able men so improve into ufeful matter.

LET the affemb ies be annual, with a Prefident only. The reprefentation more equal. Their bufnefs wholly domeftic, and fubject to the authority of a Contmental Con. grefs,

34 COMMONSENSE.

Let each colony be divided into fix, eight, or ten, conve: nient diffriets, each diftriit to fend a proper number of delegates to Congrefs, fo that each colony fend at leaft thirly. The whole number in Congrefs will be at leaft 390. Each Congrefs to fit and to choofe a prefident by the following method. When the delegates are met, let a colony be taken from the whole thirteen colonies by lot, after which, let the whole Congrefs choofe (by ballot) 2. prelident from out of the delegates of that province. In the next Congrefs, let a colony be taken by lot from twelve only, omitting that colony from which the prefident was saken in the former Congrefs, and fo proceeding on till the whole thitreen fhall have thad their proper rotation. And in order that nothing may pafs into a law but what is fatisfactorily juft, not lefs than thiee fifths of the Congiefs to be called a majority. - He that will promote difcord, under a government fo equally formed as this, would have joined Lucifer in his revolt.

But as there is a peculiar delicacy, from whom, or in what manner, this bufinefs muft firft arife, and as it feems moft agreeable and confifient, that it hould come from fome intermediate body between the governed and the governors, that is, between the Congrefs and the people, let a Continental Conference be held, in the following manner, and for the following purpofe.

A committee of twenty fix members of Congrefs, viz. swo for each colony. Two members from each Houfe of Affembly, or Provincial Convention; and five reprefentasives of the people at large, to be chofen in the capital city or town of each province, for, and in behalf of the whole province, by as many qualified voters as fhall think proper to attend from all parts of the province for that purpofe; or, if more convenient, the reprefentatives may be chofen in two or three of the moft populous parts thereof. In this conference, thes affembled, will be united, the two grand principais of bufinets, knowledge and power. The members of Congrefs, Affernblies, or Conventions, by having had experience in national concerns, will be able and ufeful counfellors, and the whole, being impowered by the people, will have a truly legal authority.

The conferring members being met, let their bufinefs be to Frame a Continental Charter, or Charter of the Unised Colonies; (anfwering to what is called the Magna Charta of England) fixing the number and manner of choofing members of Congrefs, members of Affembly, with their date of fitting, and drawing the line of bufinefs and jurifdiction between them: (Always remembering, that our ftiength is continental, not provincial:) Securing freedom and proper a ty to all men, and above all things, the free exercife of religion, according to the dictates of confcience; with fuch 0 . ther matter as is neceflary for a charter to contain. Immediately after which, the faid Conference to diffolve, and the bodies which mall be chofen conformable to the faid charter, to be the legiflators and governors of this continent for the time being: Whofe peace and happinefs, may God preferve, Amen.

Should any hody of men be hereafter delegated for this or fome fimilar purpofe, I offer them the following extracis from that wife obferver on governments Dragonerti. "The "fcience" fags be " of the politician confilts in fixing the ${ }^{6}$ etrue point of happinefs and freedom. Thofe men would *s deferve the gratitude of ages, who thould difcover a mode * of government that contained the greateft fum of individual ${ }^{66}$ happinefs, with the leaft national expence.

> Dragonetti on virtus and rewards."

But where fays fome is the King of America ? I'il tell you Friend, he reigns above, and doth not make havoc of mankind, like the Roval Brute of Britain. Yet that we may not appear to be defective even in earthly honors, let a day be folemnly fet apart for proclaiming the charter; let it be brought forth placed on the divine law, the word of God : let a crown be placed thereon, by which the world may know, that fo far as we approve of monarchy, that in America the law is King. For as in abfolute gevernments the King is law, fo in free countries the law ough to be King; and there ought to be no other. But left any ill ufe Thould afterwards arife, let the crown at the conclufion of the ceremony be demolifhed, and fattered among the people, whofe right it is.

A government of our own is our natural right: And when a man feriouly refiects on the precarioufnefs of hu= man affairs, he will become convinced, that it is irfiniefy wifer and fafer, to form a conflitution of our own in a cool de iberate manner, while we have it in our power, than so truft fuch an interefting event to time and chance. If we omit it now, fome * Maffanello may hereafter arife, who laying hold of popular difquietudes, mas coilect togeiher the defperate and the dilcontented, and by affuming to themrelues the powers of government, may fweep a way the liv betties of the continent hike a deluge. Should the governanent of America return again inio the hands of Bricain, the sottering filuation of things, will be a tempration for fome defperate adventures to tyy his fortune; and in fuch a cale, what telieff can Bitain give! Eie fhe could hest the news, the ta al tulf efs might be done; and cutelves foffering like the wetched Brions under the opp tfition of the Conquetor. Ye thar npprefe independance now, ye knuw rot what ye do; ye are opening a door to evernal tyranny, by keeping vacant the feat of government. Theie are thoufands, and - Iens of thowiands, who woud think it g'erious to expel from the conunent, that barbatous and hellifh power, which hath fritred up the ladians and Neg oes to deftioy us, the cruelzy hath a doube guit, it is dealing brusally by us, and areacheroufly by them.

$3^{6}$ COMMONSENSE.

To talk of friendibip with thore in whom our reafon forbids us to have faith, and our affections wounded shrough a the ufand pores infrue us to deteft, is madnefs and folly. Wvery day wears ous the little remains of kindred between us and them, and can here be any reafon to hope, that as the relationthip expires, the affection will increafe, or that we Chall agree better, when we have ten times more, and greater concerns to quarrel over than ever?

Ye that tell us of harmony and reconciliation, can ye refiore to us the time that is paft? Can ya give to proftitu ion its former innocence? Neither ean gereconcile Britain and Ancricz. The lat cord now is broken, the people of England

* Thomas Anello, otberwife Mafinello, a fiferman of Naples, who afler fitriting up his countrmen in the public market place, againf the opprefin of the Spaniards, to whoma the place was then fuhjoct, prompred them to revoltz and is tbe Jpace of a day became King.

Eng'and are orefenting addrefies againit us. There are in. juries which oature cannot fogive; the would ceafe to be nature if he did. "As well can the lover forgive the ravifher of his mitrefs, as the continent forgive the murderers of Britain. The Almighty bath implanted in us thefe unextinguith able fee'ings for good and wife purpofes. They are the guardians of his image in our hearts. They diffinguin us from the herdof common animals. The focial compact would diffilue, and juftice be extirpatod the earth, or have only a calual exiftence were we callous to the touches of affection. The robher, and the murderer. would often efcape unpunith. ed, did not the injuries which our tempers fuitain, provoke us into juftice.

O ye that love mankind! Ye that dare oppofe, not only the tyranny, but the tyrant, Pand forth! Every foot of the old world is overrun with oppreflion. Freedom hath been hunted round the globe. Afia, and Africa, have long expelled her-Europe regards her like a Atranger, and England hath givet her warning to depart. $O$ ! receive the fugitive, and prepare in time an afyllum for mankind.

Of the prefent ABILITY of AMERICA; with fome mijcellancous REFLEXIONS.

IHave never met with a man, either in England or America, who bath not coneffed his opinion, that I Ceparation between the countries, would rake place one time or other: A ad there is no inflance, in which we have fhema lef judgnent, than n endeavoting to defcribe, what we call the ripenefs or fimefs of the Continent for independance.

As all men allow the mealure, and vary only in their opinion of the time, et us, in order to remove miftakes, take a general furvey of things, and endeavor, if poffible, to find out the very time. Bur we need not go far, the inquiry ceafes at once, for, the time batb found us. The general concurence, the glorious union of all things prove the fadt.

It is not in numbers, but in unity, that our great ftrength lies; yet our prefent numbers are fufficient to repel the force o all the world The Continent, hath, at this time, the largeat body of armed and difciplined men of any power undes Heaven:

$3^{8}$

 COMMON SENSEHeaven; and is juft arrived at that pitch of Atrength, in which, no fingle colony is able to fupport itfelf, and the whole, when united can accomplifh the matter, and eithet more, or, lefs than this, raight be fatal in its effects. Our land force is already fufficient, and as to naval affairs, we cannot be infenfible, that Britain would never fuffer an American man oi war to be built, while the continent remained in her hands. Wherefore, we fhould be no forwarder an hundred years hence in that branch, than we are now; but the truth is. we fhould be lefs fo, becaufe the timber of the country is every day diminifhing, and that, which will remain at laft, will be far off and difficult to procure.

Were the continent crowded with inhabitants, her fufferings under the prefent circumpances would be intolerable. The more fea port towns we had, the more hould we have both to defend and to loofe. Our prefent numbers are fo. happily preportioned to our wants, that no man need be idle. The diminution of trade affords an army, and the neceffities of an army create a new trade.

Debts we have none; and whatever we may contract on this account will ferve as a glorious memento of our virtue. Can we but leave pofterity with a fettled form of government, an independant conftitution of its own, the purchafe at any price will be cheap. But to expend millions for the fake of getting a few vile acts repealed, and routing the prefent miniftry only, is unworthy the charge, and is ufing pofterity with the utmoft cruelty; becaure it is leaving them the great work to do, and a debt upon their backs, from which, they derive no advantage. Such a thought is unworthy a man of honor, and is the true characteriftic of a narrow heart and a peddling politician.

The debt we may contract doth not deferve our tegard if the work be but accomplifhed. No nation ought to be without a debt. A national debt is a national bond; and when it bears no intereft, is in no cafe a grievance. Britain is ope preffed with a debt of upwards of one hundred and forty milh lions fterling, for which the pays upwards of four milliuns intereft. And as a compenfation for her debi, fhe has a large navy; America is without a debt, and withour a navy; yet for the twentieth part of the Englith national debt, could could have a navv as large again. The navy of England is not worth, at this time, more than three millions and an half Aerling.

COMMONSENSE.

The firft and fecond editions of this pamphlet were publifhed without the following calculations, which are now given as a pronf that the above effimation of the navy is a juft one. See Entic's naval Hifory, intro. page 56.
The charge of building a thip of each rate, and furnifhing her with mafts, vards, fai's and rigging, together with a proportion of eight months boat(wain's and carpenter's fea.fores, as caiculated by Mr. Burchett, Secretary to the navy.

And from hence it is eafy to fum up the value, or colt rather, of the whole Britifh navy, which in the year 1757, When it was at its greateft glory, confited of the following mhips and guns.

40  COMMONSENSE.

No country on the globe is fo bappily fituated, or fo in: ternally capable of raifing a fleet as America. Tar, limber, iron, and cordage are her netural produce. We need go abroad for nothing. Whereas the Duich, who make large profits by hiring out their thips of war to the Spaniards and Portuguefe, are obliged to import moft of the materiais they ufe. We ought to view the building a flect as an artical of commerce, it being the natural manufactory of this country. It is the beft money we can lay out. A navy when finifhed is worth more than it coft. And is that nice point in national policy, in which commerce and protection are united. Let us build; if we want them not, we can fell; and by that means replace our paper currency with teady gold and filver.

In point of manning a fleet, people in general run into great errors; it is not neceflary that one fourth part Thould be failors. The Terrible privateer, Cap!ain Death, flood the hotteft engagement of any thip laft war, yet had not swenty failors on board, though her complement of men was upwards of two hundred. A few able and focial failors will foon inffruct a fufficient number of active landmen in the common work of a hip. Wherefore, we never can be more capable to begin on maritime matters than now, while our timber is ftandiag, our fifheries blocked up, and our failors and thipwrights out of employ. Men of war of feventy and eighty guns were built forty years ago in New England, and why not the fame now? Ship-building is America's greateft pside, and in whici, the will in time excel the whole world. The great empires of the eaft are moftly inland, and confequently excluded from the poflibility of rivalling her. Africa is in a ftate of barbarifm; and no power in Europe, hath either fuch an extent of coaft, or fuch an ineernal fupply of materials. Where nature hath given the one, the has withheld the other; to America only hath the been liberal of both. The vaft empire of Ruffia is almoft Shut out from the fea; wherefore, her boundlefs foreft, her tar, iron, and cordage are only articles of commerce.

In point of fafety, ought we to be without a fleet? We are not the little people now, which we were faxty years ago ; at that time we might have truted our froperty in the freets, or fields rather; and flept fecutcly without locks sor boles to our doors or windows. The rafe now is altered, and our methods of defence, ought to improve with ous increafe of property. A common pirate, leelve months ago, might have come up the Delaware, and laid the city of Phladelphia under inftant contribution, for what fom he pleafed; and the fame might bave happened to other places : Nay, any daring fellow' in a brig of fourteen or fixteen guns, might have robbed the whole Continent, and carried off half a million of money. Thete are circumflances which demand our attemtion, and point out the neceristy of naval protection.

C@MMONSENSE.

Some, perhaps, will fay, that after we have made it up with Britain, the will protect us. Can we be fo unwife as to mean, that the will keep a navy in our harbours for that purpofe? Common fenfe will tell us, that the power which hath endeavoured to fubdue us, is of all orhers, the moft improper to defend us. Conqueft may be effecied under the pretence of friendfhip; and ourfelves, after a long and braved reififance, be at laft cheated into flavery. And if her fhips are not to be admitted into our hasbours, I would ank, how is the to protect us? A navy threo or four thoufand miles off can be of little ule, and on ludden emergencies, none at all. Wherefore, if we mult hereafter proted ourfelves, why not do it for ourfelves? Why do it for another?

The Englifh lift of Chips of war, is long and formidabie, but not a tenth part of them are at any one time fit for fervice, numbers of them not in being a yet their names are pompoufly continued in the lift, if only a plank be left of the thip: and not a fifth part, of fuch as ale fit for fervice, can be fared on any ose fation at one time. The Eafl, and Wet Indies, Mediterranean, Africa, and other parts over which Britain extends her claim, make large demands upon her navy. From a mixture of prejudice and inattention, we have contracted a falfe notion repeeting the navy of Eugland, and have talked 23 if we mould have tha whole of it to encounter at once, and for that reafor, fuppofed, that we muft have one as large; which not being in. fantly practicable, have been made ufe of by a fet of dif. guifed Tories to difcourage our beginning thereono Now thing can be farther from truth than this; for if America had only a twentieth part of the naval force of Britain, the would be by far an over match for her ; becaufe, as we neither have, nor claim any foreign dominion, our whole force would be employed on our own coaft, where we Bould, in the long run, have two to one the advantage of thofe who had three or four thoufand miles to fail over, before they could attack us, and the fame diffance to retura in order to refit and recruit. And although Britain by hes feet, hath a check over, our trade to Europe, we have at latge a one over her trade to the Weft-Indies, which, by laying in the neigtabourhood of the Continent, is entirely at ite mercy.

42 COMMONSENSE.

Some method might be fallen on to keep up a naval force in time of peace, if we fhould not judge it neceflary to fupo port a conftant navy. If premiums were to be given to merchants, to build and employ in their fervice, mips mounted with twenty, thirty, forty, or fifty guns, (the premiums to be in proportion to the lofs of buik to the merchants) fifty or fixty of thofe flips, with a few guard łhips on conflane duty, would keep a fufficient navy, and that without burdening ourfelves with the evil, to loudly complained of in: England, of fuffering their fleet, in time of peace to lie rotting in the docks. To unite the finews of commerce and defence is found policy; for when our ftrength and our riches, play into each other's hand, we need fear no external enemy.

In almoft every article of defence we abound. Hemp flourifhes even to ranknefs, fo that we need not want cor. diage. Our iron is fuperior to that of other countries. Our fmall.arms equal to any in the world. Cannon we caa caft $2 t$ pleafure. Saltpetre and gunpowder we are every day producing. Our knowledge is hourly impreving. Refolution is our inherent character, and courage hath never yet forfaken us. Wherefore, what is it that we want? Why is it that we hefitate? From Britain we can expect nothing but ruin. If fhe is once admitted to the government of America again, this Continent will not be worth living in. Jealoufies will be always arifing; infurrections will be conttantly happening : and who will go forth to quell them ? Who

COMMONSENSE.

Who will venture bis life to reduce his own countrymen to & foreign obedience ? The difference between Pennivivaria and Conneclicut, refpecting foma unlocated lands, Thews the infignificance of a Britifh government, and fully proves, that nothing but Continental authority can regulate Continental matters.

Another reafon why the prefent time is preferable to all others, is, that the fewer our numbers are, the mure land there is yet unoccupied, which inftead of being lavifted by the king on his worthlefs dependants, may be hereater applied, not only to the difcharge of the prefent debt, but to the conftant fupport of government. No nation under heaven hath fuch an advantage as this.

The infant fate of the Colonies, as it is called, fo fas from being again , is an argument in favor of independance. We are fufficiently numerous, and were we more fo, we might be lefs united. It is a matter worthy of obfecvation, that the more a country is peopled, the fmaller their armies are. In military numbers, the ancients far exceeded the modernis : and the reafon is evident, for trade being the confequence of population, men become too much abforbed thereby to attend to any thing elfe. Commerce diminifhes the fpirit, both of patriotifm and mllitary defence. And biffory fufficiently informs us, that the braveft atchievements were always accomplifeed in the non age of a nation. With the increafe of commerce, England hath loft its firit. The city of London, notwithfanding its numbers, fubmits to contirued infults with the patience of a coward. The more men have to lofe, the lefs willing are they to venture. The rich are in general flaves to fear, and fubmit to courty power with the stembling duplicity of a Spaniel.

Youth is the feed of good habits, as well in nations as in individuals. It might be difficult, if not impoffible, to form the Continent into one government half a century hence. The vaft variety of intereffis, occafioned by an in creafe of trade and population, would create confufion. Co. lony would be againft colony. Each being able might feorn each other's affiftance : and while the proud and foolilh gloriod in their little diftinctions, the wife would lamens, that thas the unian bad not been formed before. Wherefore, the prefont time is the true time for eftablibung it. The intimacy which is contracted in infancy, and the filendfhip which is formed in misfortune, are of all others, the moft lafing and unalterable. Our prefent union is marked with hoth thefe characters: we are young, and we have been difieffed; but our concord hath viithftood our troubles, and fixes a memorable Fira for pofterity to glory in.

44  COMMONSENSE.

The prefent sime likewife, is that peculiar time, which never hapoens to a nation but once, viz, the time of forming ifelf into a government. Mof nations have let flip the opportunity, and by that means have been compelled to receive laws from their conquerors, infead of making laws for themfelves. Firf they had a king, and then a form of government; whereas the articles or charter of government \$hould be formed firt, and men delegated to execute them afterward: but from the errors of other nations, let us learn wifdom, and lay hold of the prefent opportunity $\longrightarrow$ To begin Government at the right end. When William the Conquero fubdued England, he gave them law at the point of the fword; and until we confent that the feat of governmene in America be legallp and authoritatively filled, we Thall te in danger of having it filed by fome fortunate ruf. fian, who reay treat us in the fame manner, and then, where will be our freedom? where will be our property.

As to religion, I hold it to be the indifpenfible duty of all government, to protect all confcientious profeffors thereof, and I know of no other bufinefs which government bath to do therewith. Let a inan throw afide shat narrownefs of foul, that felfihnefs of princip's, which the niggards of all profeftions are fo unwilling to part with, and he will be de* livered of his fears on that head. Sufpicion is the comy panion of mean foule and the bane of all good focietp. For anyfelf fully and confientioully believe, that it is the will of the A!mighty, that there fhould be diverfity of religous opinions among us. It affords a larger fold for our chrif. tiankindnefs; were we all of one way of thinking our religious difpofisione wou'd want matter for probation; and no this liberal principle I look on the various denominationa - mong us, to be like children of the fame family difering exy in what is called their chiftian names.

COMMON SENSE.

In page thisty-four I threw out a few thoughts on the Continental Chatter, (for 1 only prefume to offer hints, not plans) and in this place I take the liberty of re-mentioning the fubject, by obferving, that a charter is to be underftood as a bond of folemn obligation, which the whole enters into, to fupport the right of every feparate part, whether of religion, perfonal freedom, or property. A right reckoning makes long friends.

In a former page I likewire mentioned the neceffity of a large and equal repretentation; and there is no political matter which more deferves our attention. A fmall num. ber of electors, or a fmall number of reprefentatives are e. qually dangerous. But if the number of the reprefentatives be not only fmall, but unequal, the danger is increafed, As an inftance of this I mention the following; when the affociators petition was before the Hiule of Affembly of Penn. fylvania, twenty eight members only were prefent. All the Bucks county members, being eight, voted againft it, and had feven of the Chefer members done the fame, this whole Province had been governed by two counties only, and this danger it is always, expofed to. The unwarrantable firetch likewife, which that houfe made in their laft fitting, to gain an undue authority over the Delegates of that Province, ought to warn the people at large, how they truft power out of their own hands. A fet of inftructions for the Delegates were put together, which in point of Yenfe and bufinefs would have difhonored a fchool boy, and aficr being approved by a fexu, a very few without doors, were carried into the houle, and there paffed in behalf of the whole Colony ; whereas did the whole Colony know, with what iil will that houfe hath entered on fome neceffary public meafures, they would not heftiate a moment to think them unworthy of fuch a ruft.

Immediate neceffity makes many things convenient, which if continued would grow into oppreffions, Expe: dience and right, are different things. When the calamities of America required a confultaion, there was no method fo ready, or at that time fo proper, as to appoint perfons from the feveral houfes of Affembly for that purpofe; and the wildom with which they have proceeded hath preferved this Continent from ruin. Butas it is more than probable that we ¢hall never be without a Concress every weil wifher to good order, muft own, that the mode for choofing members of that body, deferves confideration. And I put it as a queftion to thofe, who make a ftudy of marikind, whether reprefentation and election is not toc great a power for one and the fame body of men to poffers? When wo gre planning for pofterity, we ought to remember, that virtue is not hereditary.

46 COMMON SENSE.

It is from our enemies that we often gain excellent maxims, and are frequently furprifed into reafon by their miftakes. Mr. Cornwall (one of the Lords of the Treafury) treated the petition of the New York Affembly with contempt, becaufe that houfe, he faid, conlifted but of twenty fix members, which tifiling number, he argued, could not with decency be put for the whole. We thank him for bis involuntary honefty.*

TO CONCLUDE, ho wever ftrange it may appear to fome, or however unwilling they may be to think fo, matters not, but many frong and friking reafons, may be given to fhew, that nothing can fettle our affairs fo expeditioufly as an open and determined declaration for independance. Some of which are, ${ }^{\text {, }}$

Firf. It is the cuflom of Nations, when any two are at war; for fome other powers not engaged in the quarrel, to ficp in as mediators and bring about the preliminaries of a peace; but while America calls herfelf the Subject of Great Briain, no power however well dilpofed he may be, can offer her mediation. Wherefore, in our grefent flate we may quarrel on for ever.

Secondly.- It is unreafonable to fuppofe, that France os Spain will give us any kind of affifance, if we mean only, to make ufe of that affiftance for the purpofe of repairing the breach, and firengthening the connexion between Britain and America; becaufe, thofe powers would be fufferers by the confequences.

Thirdly.

[^1]
COMMONSENSE.

Thirdly, - While we profefs ourfelves the fubjects of Briw tain, we muft, in the eye of foreign nations, be confidered as rebels. The precedent is fomewhat dangerous to their peace, for men to be in arms under the name of fubjects; we, on the foot, can folve the paradox: But to unite refife ance and fubjection, requires an idea much too refined for common undeftanding.

Fourthly. - Were a.manifefto to be publimed, and difpatched to foreign courts, fetting forth the miferies we have endured, and the peaceable methods we have ineffectually ufed for redrefs ; declaring, at the fame time, that not be. ing able, any longer, to live happily or fafely under the cruel difpolition of the Britith court, we had been driven to the neceffity of breaking off all connections with her; at the fame time, affuring all fuch courts of our peaceable difpofftion towards them, and of our defire of entering into trade with them: Such a memorial would produce more good effects to this Continent, than if a thip were freighted with petitions to Britain.

Under our prefent denomination of Britifh fubjects, we can neither be received nor heard abroad: The cuftom of all courts are againft us, and will be fo, until, by an inde. pendance, we take rank with other nations.

Thefe proceedings may at firft appear ftrange and difficult ; but, like all other fteps which we have already paffed over, will in a little time become familiar and agreeable; and, until an independance is declared, the Continent will feel itfelf like a man who continues putting off fome unpleafant bufinefs from day to day, yet knows it muft be done, hates to fet about it, wifhes it over, and is continually haunted with the thoughts of its necelity.

A P P E N D I X.

S
I NCE the publication of the firf edition of this pam: phlet, or rather on the fame day on which it came out; the King's Speech made its appearance in this city. Had the firit of prophecy directed the birth of this production, it could not have brought it forth, at a more feafonable juncture, or a more neceflary time. The bloody raindeds mefs of the one, thew the neceffity of purfuing the doctrine of the other. Men read by way of revenge. And the Speech, inftead of terrifying, prepared a way for the manly principles of Independance.

48 COMMONSENSE.

Ceremony, and even, filence, from whatever motive they may arife, have a hurtful tendency, when they give the leaft eegree of countenance to bale and wicked performances; wherefore, if this maxim be admitted, it naturally follows, that the King's Speech, as being a piece of finified villany, deferved, and fill deferves, a general execration both by the Congrefs and the people. Yet, as the domeffic tranquility of a nation, depends greatly, on the chafity of what may properily be called national manners, it is ofien better, to pafs fome things over in filent difdain, than to make ufe of fuch new mothods of diffike, as might introduce the leaft innovation, on that guardian of our peace and fafety. And, perhaps, it is chiefly owing to this prudent delicacy, that the King's Speech, hath not, before now, fuffered a public execution. The Speech if it may be called one, is nothing better than a wilful audacious litel againft the truth, the common good, and the exiftence of mankind; and is a formal and pompous method of offering up human facrifices to the pride of tyrants. But this general maflacre of mankind, is, one of the privileges, and the certain confequence of K ings; for as nature knows them not, they know not ber, and although they ate beings of our own ereating, they koow not us, and are become the gods of their creators. The Speech bath one good quality, which is, that it is not calculated to deceive, neither can we, even if.we would, be deceived by it. . Brutality and tyranny appear on the face of it. It leaves us at no lofs: And every line convinces, ever in the momient of sceding, that He, who hunts the woods for prey, the naked and untutored Indian, is lefs a Savage than the King of Britain.
Sir John Daleymple, the putative fathes of a whining jefuitical piece, tallaciounly called, "The addre/s of the peom ple of ENGLAND to the inhabitunts of AMERICA," bath, ferhaps, from a vain fupposition, that the people bere were to be frightened at the pomp and defcription of a king, given, (though very unwifely on his part) the real character of the prefent one: "But," lays this writer, "if you are inclined to pay compliments to an adminiftration, which we do not complain of," (meaning the Marquis of Rockingham's at the repeal of the Stamp Act) "6 it is very unfair in you to withhold them from that prince, by whofe NOD ALONE they were permitted to do any thing." This is toryifm with a witnefs! Here is idolatry even without a mafk: And he who can calmiy hear, and digeft fuch doctrine, bath forfeited his claim to rationality-an apoftate from the order of manhood; and ought to be confidered-as one, who hath not only given up the proper dignity of man, but funk himfelf beneath the rank of animals, and contemptibly crawl through the world like a worm.

A P P E N DIX.

However, it matters very littie now, what the king of England either fays or does; he hath wickediy broken through every moral and human oobligation, trampled nature and confcience beneath his feet; and by a fteady and confticutional fpirit of infolence and cruelty, procured for himfelf an univerfal hatred. It is now the intereft of Ametica to provide for herfelf. She hath already a large and young family, whom it is more her duty to take care of than to be granting away her property, to fupport a power who is become a reproach to the names of men and chrifti-ans-YE, whofe office it is to watch over the morals of a nation, of whatfoever fect or denomination ye are of, as well as $y$ e, who, are more immediately the guardians of public liberty, if we wifh to preterve your native country uncontaminated by European corruption, ye muft in fecret wifh a feparation- But leaving the moral part to private reflection, I thall chielly confine my farther remarks to the following heads.

Firf. That it is the interef of America to be feparated from Britain.

Secondly. Which is the cafieft and mot practicable plan, &ECONCILIATION or XNDEPENDANCE? with fome occafional remarks.

In fupport of the firf, I could, if I judged it proper, pro. duce the opinion of fome of the ablen and moft experienced men on this cominent and whofe fentiments, on that head, are not publicirya. It is in reaity a teif evident pofition: For no nation in a flate of foreign dependarce, limited in its commerce, and cramped and feitered in its legifiative powers; ean ever arrive at any material emfinence. Ab merica dorh not yet know what opulance is ; and athough the progrefs which the bath made, ftands ungaralleled in the hiftory of other nations, it is bur chiidhood, cempared with what the would be capable of arriving at, had Be, as foe ought to have, the legiflative powers in her own hands. England is, at this time, proudly coveting what woutd do Ther no good, were the to accomplifh it; and she Continent hefiating on a matter, which will be her final ruin if neglected. It is the commerce and not the conquaft of America, by which England is to be benefited, ant that would in a great meafure coninue, were the countries as independant of each cther as France and Spain; becaufe in mang articles, neither can go to a better market. But it is the independance of this country on Britain or any other, which is now the main and only object worthy of contention, and which, like alt other truths difcovered by neceffity, will appear clearer and fronger every day.

30 A P P E N D I X.

Firf. Becaufe it will come to that one time or other.
Secondly. Becaufe, the longer it is delayed the harder it will be ro accomplifh.

I have frequently amufed myfelf both in public and priwate companies, with filently remaking, the fpecious errore of thofe who fpeak without reflecting. And among the many which I have heard, the following feems the moft gene3al, viz. that had this rupture happened forty or fifty years thence, inflead of now, the Continent would have been more able to have thaken off the dependence. To which 1 reply, that our military ability, at this time, arifes from the experience gained in the faft war; and which in forty or fifty years time, would have been totally extinet. The Contiot nent, would not, by that time, have had a General, or even $$$ military officer left $s$ and we, or thofe who may fucceed u8, would have been as ignorant of martial matiers as the ancient Indians: And this fingle pofition, clofely attended fos will unandwerably prove, that the prefent time is preferable ferable to all other. The argument turns thus-at the conclufion of the laft war, we had experience, but wanted numbers; and forty or fifty years hence, we fould have numbers, without experience; wherefore, the preper peint of time, muft be fom particular point between the two exfremes, in which a fufficiency of the former remains, and a proper increafe of the latter is obtained: And that point of time is the prefent time.

$$
\text { A P } P \quad N \quad D \perp X
$$

The reader will pardon this digrefion, as it does not properly come under the head I firft fet out with, and to which I again return by the following pofition, viz.

Shouid affairs be patched up with Britain, and The to remain the goveining and fovereign power of America, (which as mat ers are now circumftanced, is giving up the point in (irely) we fhall dep:ive ourfelves of the vesy means of finking the debt we have, or may contrad. The valise of the back ands which fome of the provinces are clandeftinely deprived of, by the unj at extention of the limits of Canada, valuem only at five pounds Ateriing per hundred acres, amoune So upwards of twenty five millions, Pennfylvania curiency; and the quitrents at one penay feting per acre, to two millions yearly.

It is by the fale of thofe lands that the deb: may be funk, without burthen to any, and the quit rent referved thereon? will always leffen, and in time, will wholly fupport the yearly expence of government. It matiers not how long the debt is in paying, fo. that the lands when fold te applied to the difcharge of it, and for the execution of which, the Congrefs for the time being, will be the continental srufters.

I proceed now to the recond head, viz. Which is the eafieft and moft gracticable plan RECONCILIATION OR IN DERENDANCE; with fome occafional remarks.

He who takes nature for his guide, is not eafily beaten out of his argument, ant on that ground. I anfwer generally $\longrightarrow$ That independance being a single simple ling, sontained within ourfelues; and reconciliation, a matter exseedingly perplexed and complicated, and in which, a treacherous capricious court is to interfere, gives the anfwer without at doukts

52 APPENDIX.

The prefent fate of America is truly alarming to every man who is capable of reflexion. Without law, without government, without any other mode of power than what is founded on, and granted by couriefy. Held rogether by an unexampled concurrence of fentiment, which, is neverthelefis fubject to change, and which, every fecret enemy is sendeavoring to diffolve. Our prefent condition, is, legiflation without law; wifdom without a plan; 2 conflitution without a name; and, what is firangely aftonifhing, perfect Independance conterding for dependance. The inflance is without a precedent ; the cafe never exifted before; and who can tell what may be the event? The property of no man is fecure in the prefent unbraced fyftem of things. The mind of the muttitude is left at random, and feeing no fixed pbjeet before them, they purfue fuch as fancy or opivion Itartso Nothing is criminal; there is no fuch thing as treafoa; wherefore, every one thinks himfelf at liberty to act as he pieafes. The Tories dared not have affembled offenfively, had they known that their lives, by that act, were forfeited to the laws of the flate. A line of diffinction fhould be drawn, between, Englifo foldiers taken in battie, and inhabitants of America taken in arms. The firlt are prifoners, but the latter waitors. The one forfeits his liberty, the other his head.

Notwithftanding our wifdom, there is a vifib'e feeb'enefs in fome of our proceedings which gives encouragement to difemions. The Continental Belt is too Iofely buckied, And if fomething is not done in time, it will be too tate to. do any thing, and we fhall fall into a fate, in which, neither Reconciliation nor Independance will be practicable. The king and his worthlefs adberents are got at their old game of dividing the Continent, and there ate not wanting among us, Printets, who will be bufy in fpreading fpecious fallehoods. The artul and hypocritical letter which appeared a few months ago in two of the New-York papers, and likewife in two others, is an evidence that thare are men who want either judgment or honeffy.

It is eafy getting into holes and coiners and talking of reconciliation: But do fuch men ferioufly confidet, how difficuls the ta? is, and bow dangerous it may prove, thould

Whe Continent divide thereon. Do they take within their view, all the various orders of men whofe fituation and circumftances, as well as their own, are to be confidered therein. Do they put themetelves in the place of the fuffecer whofe all is already gone, and of the foldier, who hath quitted all for the defence of his country. If their ill judged moderation be fuited to their own private fituations only, regardlefs of others, the event will convince them, that "they are reckoning without their Hoft."

Put us, rays fome, on the footing we were on in fixty three: To which I anfwer, the requeft is not now in the power of Britain to comply with, neither will the propofe it; but if it were, and even thould be granted, I afk, as a reafonable queftion, By what means is fuch a corrupt and faithlef court to be kept to its engagements? Another parliament, nay, even the prefent, may hereafter repeal the obligation, on the pretence, of its being violently obtained, or unwifely granted; and in that cafe, Where is our redrefs ? - No going to law with nations; cannon are the barnters of Crowns; and the froord, not of jutice, but of war, decides the fuit. To be on the fooing of fixty-three, it is not fufficient, that the laws only be put on the fame flate, but, that our circumftances, lifewile, be put on the fame ftate, Our burnt and deft oyed towns repaired or built up, our private loffes made good, our public debts (contracted for defence) difcharged; otherwife, we fhall be millions worfe than we were at thas enviable period. Suchatrequeft, had it been complied with a year ago, would nave won the beart and foul of the Continent-but now it is too late, "The Rubicon is paffed."

Befides, the taking up arms, merely to enforce the repeal of a pecuniary law, feems as unwarrantable by the divine law, and as repugnant to human feelings, as the taking up arms to enforce obedience thereto. The object, on either fise, toth vot juftify the means; for the lives of men are top valuable to be calt away on fuch rifies. It is the violence which is done and theatened to our perfons; the defruction of our property by an armed force; the envafion of our country by fire and iwold, which confcientioufly qualifes the ufe of arms: And the mitant in which fuch a mode of derence becamenecuflay, all fubjection to Britain ought to have ceafed; and the independancy of Americas Thould have been corfide en, as dating its zera from, and putithed by, the firft mu/ket that was fired againgi ber. This line is a line of confifiefo! ; neithe dawn by caprice, nor extended by ambition; but produced by a chain of events, of which the colonies were not the authors.

$A P P E N D I X$.

I fhall conclude thefe remarks, with the following timely and well intended hints. We ought to reflee, that there are three different ways, by which an independancy may hereafter be effected; and that one of thofe three, will one day or other, be the fate of America, viz. By the legal voice of the people in Congrefs; by a military power; or by a mob: It may not always happen that our foldiers are citizens, and the multitude a body of reafonablemen; virtue, as I have already remarked, is not hereditary, neither is it perpetual. Should an independancy be brought about by the filf of thofe means, we have every opportunity and every encouragement before us, to form the nobleft pureft conftisution on the face of the earth. We have it in our power so begin the world over again. A firuation, fimilar to the prefent, hath not happened fince the days of Noah until now. The birth day of a new worid is at hand, and a race of men, perhaps as numerous as all Europe contains, are to receive their portion of freedom from the event of a few months. The refiexion is awful-and in this point of view How trifirg, how ridiculous, do the little, paltry cavellings, of a few weak or intereffed men appear, when weigh ed againft the bufinefs of a world.

Should we neglect the prefont favorable and inviting pesiod, and an Independance be hereafter effected by any other means, we muit cha ge the coferquence to ourfelves, or to thofe rather, whofe narrow and prejudiced fouls, are babitually oppofing the meafure, withour either inquiring or reflecting. There are reafons to be given in fupport of Independance, which men mould rather privately think of ${ }_{2}$ shan be publicly told of. We ought not now to be debating wheiner we Mall be independant or not, but, anxious so accomplifh it on a firm, fecure, and honorable bafss, and uneary raiber that it is not yet began upon. Every day convinces us of its necefity. Even the Tories fif fuch beings yet remain among us) Thould, of all men, be the mof folicitous to promote it; for, as the appointment of conamittees at firf, protected them from popular rage, $f o$, a wife and well eftablifhed form of government, will be the only eertain means of continuing it fecurely to thein. Wherefore, if they have not virtue enough to be WHIGs, they ought to have prudence enough to with for Independance.

A P PENDIX.

In fhort, Independance is the only Bond that cantye and keep us together. We fhall then fee our object, and our ears will be legally thut againtt the fehemes of an intriguing, as well, as a cruel enemy. We fhall then too, be on a proper footing, to treat with Britain; for there is reafon to conclude that the pride of that eourt, will be lefs hurt by sreating with the American fates for terms of peace, than with thofe whom the denominates, "rebellious fubjects," Sor terms of accommodation. It is our de'aying it hat encourages her to hope for cosqueft, and our backwardnefs tends only to prolong the war. As we have, wirhout any good effect sherefrom, witheld our urade to obtain a redrefs of our grievance, ter us now try the alternative, by independantly redrefing hem ourfe ves, and then ffering to open the trade. The mercantile and reafonable part in England, will be ftil with us; becaufe, peace with arade, is preferable to war without it. And if this offer be not ace. cepred, oher courts mav be applied to.

On theie grounds I reft the matter. And as no offer hath yet beea made to refure the doet ine cotained in the former editions of this pamphlet, it is a negative proof, that either the doctrine cannot be retured, or, that the party in favour of it are tou humerous to be oppofed. WHEREFORE, in. fead of gazing at each orther with fufpicious or doubtful curiofity, let each of us, hold out to his neighbour the hearty hand of friendthip, and unice in drawing a line, which, like an act of oblivion thal bury in forge:fonefs every former diffenion. Let the names of Whig and Tory be extinct; and lee none other be heard among us, than shofe of a good citizen, an open and refolute friends and a virtuous fupporter of the RIGHTS of MANKIND and of the FREE AND IN. GEPENDANT STALHS OF AMERICA.

A P P N D $\mathbf{P}$,

Q0 the Reprefentatives of the Religious Saciety of tid Peopis called Quakers, or 10 fo many of them as were concerned in publifing a late piece, entitleds "The Ancient Testimony and Princia si ples of the People called Quakers renew${ }^{36}$ ed, with refpect to the King and Govern. " MENT, and touching the Commotions now " prevailing in thefe and other parts of AMER "Ca addreffed to the People in General."

THE Writer of this, is one of thote few, who nevers difhoners religion either by ridiculing, or cavilhirg at any denomiration whatfoever. To God, anci not to man, ale all men accountable on the feore of reigion. Wherefore, this epifle is not to pronerly addreff. ed to you as a religicus, but as a political body, dabbling in matters, which the profeffed Quieiude of your Principies inftruet you not to meddle with.

As you have, without a proper authority for fo doings, put yourfeives in the place of the whole body of the Qua. Kers, fo, the writer of this, in order to be on an equal ranis with yourfelves, is under the erecefily of purting himfelf in the place of all thofe, wha, approve the very writings and principles, againft which, your reftimony is dirteted: And be hath chofen this fingular \%ituation, in order, that you might cifcover in bim that prefumption of charater which you cannot fee in yourfelves. For neither he nor you can have any claim or title to Political Reprefentation.

When men have departed from the right way, it is no wonder that they fumble and fall. And it is evident froms the manner in whicla ge have managed your teftimony, that pelitics, (3s a reiligicus body of men) is not your proper Wa:k; for however well adapied it might appear to you, it is, neverthelefs, a jumble of good and bad put unwile'y trge her, and the conclufion drawn therefrom, both unnatural and unjuf.

The two firt pages, (and the whole doth not make four) we give you credit for, and expect the fawe civility from you, hecauie the love and defire of peace is not corfined 20 Quakerim, it is the natural, as weil the religious wifh of all denominations of men. Aod on this around, as men laboring to eftablifh an Independant Contlitution of our own, do we exceed all others in our hope, end, and aim. Our plan is peäce for cver. We are tired of contention with Britain, and can fee no real end to it but in a final feparation. We adt confiftently, becaufe for the fake of introducing añ endlefs and uninterrupted peace, do we bear the evils and burthens of the prefent day.. We are endeavoring, and will feadily continue to endeavor, to feparate. and diffolve a connexion which hath already filled out land with blood; and which, while the name of it remains, will be the fatal caufe of future tifichiefs to both countries.

A P P EN D I X.

We fight neither for revenge nor conqueft ; neither from pride nor pafion; we are not infulting the world with our fleets and armies, nor ravaging the globe for plunder. Beneath the fhade of our own vines are we attacked of in our own houres, and on our own lands, is the violence committed againft us. We view our enemies in the charater of Highwaymen and Houfebreakers, and ha ving no defence for ourfelves in the civil law, are obliged to punifh shem by the military one, and apply the fword, in the veyy cafe, where you have before now, applied. the haker. -Perhaps we feel for the ruined and infulted fufferers in all and every part of the continent, with a degree of sendernefs which hath not yet made it's way into fome of your bofoms. But be ye fure that ye miftake not the caufe and ground of your Teftimong. Call not coldnefs of foul, réligien; nor put the Bigot in the place of the Chrif. tian.

O ye partial minifters of your own acknowledged principles. If the bearing arms be finful, the firt going to wat muft be more $\{0$, by all the difference between wilful attack and unavoidable defence. Wherefore, if ye really preach from confcience, and mean not to make a political hobby horfe of your religion, convince the world thereof? by proclaiming your doatrine to our eneinies for they likewife bear arms. Give us proof of your fincerity by publifhing it at St. James's, to the commanders in chief at Bof son, to the Admirals and Captains who are piratically ravaging our coafts, and to all the murdering mifcreants whe are acting in authority under HIM whom ye profefs to ferve. Had ye the inneft loul of Barclay ye would preach repentance to your king; Ye would tell the Royal Wretch hisefins, and warn him of eternal ruin. Ye would not fpend your partial invectives againft the injured and the infulted only, but, like faithful minifters, would cry aloud and foare nome. Say not that ye are perfecuted, neither en. ceavour to make us the authors of that reproach, which, ye are bringing upon yourfelves; for we teftify unto all men, that we do not complain againft you becaule ye are Quakers, but becaufe ye pretend to be and are nOT Quakers.

58 APPENDIX.

Alas! it feems by the particular tendency of fome part of your teftimony, and other patts of your conduct, as $\mathrm{if}_{s}$ all fin was reduced to, and comprehended in the aet of bearing arms, and that by the people only. Yeappear to us, to have miftaken party for confcience; becaufe, the general tenos of your actions wants uniformity: And it is exceedingly difficule to us so give credit to many of your pretend. ed fcruples ; becaufe, we fee them made by the fame men ${ }_{3}$ Who in the very inftant that they are exclaiming againft the mammon of this world, are neverthelefs, hunting after it with a flep as fteady as time, and an appetite as keen as Death.

The

* "Thou haft tafted of profperity and adverlity; thou knoweft what it is to be banifbed thy native country, to be over-rulece. as well as to rule, and fit upon the throne; and being oppreffed thas haft reafon to know bow hateful the oppreffor is both to God and man: If after all thefe warnings and advertifements, thou dop not turn unto the Lord with all thy of boart, but forget bim who remembered thee in thy diftrefs, ©s and give up thy felf to follow luft and vanity, Jurely great ${ }^{56}$ will be thy condemnation. - Againft which frare, as well as 6t the temptations of thofe who may or do feed thee, and prompt ©x thee to evil, the anof excellent and prevalent remedy will bes 6s to apply thyfelf to that light of Cbrift which Bineth in tho as confcience, and which neither can, nor will flatter thes, nwe. "s fuffer tbeeso be at eafe in thy fins."

Barclay's Addrefs to Charles IN.

A P P E N D X

59
The quotation which ye have made fromProverbs, in the third page of your teftimony, that, "when a man's ways pleafe the Lord, he maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him"; is very unwifely chofen on your part ; becaufe, It amounts to 2 proof, that the king's ways (whom ye are fo defirous of fupporting) do not pleare the Lord, otherwile, his reign would be in peace.

I now proceed to the latter part of your teftimony, and that, for which all the foregoing feems only an introduc. tion, viz.
cc. It hath ever been nur judgment and principle, fince ${ }^{6}$ : we were called to profefs the light of Chrift Jefus, mani©6. fefted in our confciences unto this day, that the fetting up "6 and putting down kings and governments, is God's pe6" suliar prerogative; for caufes beft known to himielf: "And that it is not our bufinefs to have any hand or con${ }^{6}$ trivance therein ; nor to be bufy bodies above our an${ }^{66}$ tion, much lefs to plot and contrive the ruin, or over. e" turn of any of them, but to pray for the king, and fafety ${ }^{56}$ of our nation, and good of all men : -That we may live st a peaceable and quiet life, in all godlinefs and honefty; "c under the government whichGod is pleafed to fet over us"If thefe are really your priaciples why do ye not abide by them? Why do ye not leave that, which ye call God's Work, to be managed by himelelf? Thefe very principies infruer you to wais with patience and bumility, for the e-vent of all public meafures, and to receive that event as the divine will towards you. Wherefore, what occation is there for your political tefimeny if you fully believe shat it contains? And the very publifhing it proves, that either, ye do not believe what ye profefs, or have not virtue enough to practife what ye believe.

The principles of Quakerifon have a direet tendency to make a man the quiet and inoffenfive fubject of any, and every government which is fet over him: And if the fetting up and putting down of kings and governments is Guci's peculiar prerogative, he moft certainly will not be robbed thereof by us; wherefore, the principle itfelf leads you to approve of every thing, which ever happened, or may happen 80 kings as being his woik! Olifer Cromwell thanks shanks you. Charles, then, died not by the hands of man ; and Thould the peefent Proud Imitator of him, come po the rame untimeiy end, the writers and publifhers of the Teftimony, are bound, by the doefrine it contains, to applaud the fact. Kings are not taken away by miracles, neither are changes in governments brought about by any other means than fuch as are common and human ; and fuch we are now uling. Even the difperfion of the Jews, though foretold by our Saviour, was effected by arms. Wherefore, as ye refure to be the means on one fide, ye pught not to be meddlers on the other ; but to wait the iffue in filence; and unlefs ye can produce divine authority, to prove, that the Almighty who hath created and placed this new world, at the greateft diftance it could poffibly ftand, caft and weft, from every part of the old, doth, neverthelefs, difapprove of its being independent of the corrupt and abandoned court uf Britain, unlefs 1 fay, ye can thew this, how can ye on the ground of your principles, juftify the exciting and firring up the people "firmly to unite in 8. the abborrence of all fuch uxitungs, and meafures, as eviir dence a defite and defign to break of the bappy connex"s ion we have hitherto enjoyed, with the kingdom of Great-"Britain, and our juft and neceffary fubordination to the " king, and thofe who are lawfully placed in authority un"der him.". What a flap of the face is here ! the men, who, in the very paragraph before, have quietly and paffively refigned up the ordering, altering, and difporal of kinge and governments, into the hiands of God, are now, recalling their princip'es, and putting in for a thare of the bufinets. Is it polible, that the conclufion, which is here juffly quoted, can any ways follow from the doctrine laid down? The inconfiftency is too glaring not to be feen ; the abfurdity too great not to be laughed at ; and fuch as could only have been made by thofe, whofe underflandlings were darkened by the nariow and crabby fipirit of a deipairing polttical paity ; for ye are not to be confidered as the whole body of the Quakers but only as a factional and fiactional part thereof.

A P P N D I X.

Here ends the examination of your teftimony; (which call upon no man te abhor, as ye have done, but only to read and judge of fairly; ) to which I fubjoin the following remark; "That the ferting up and putting down of kings." moft certainly mean, the making him a king, who is yes not $f($, and the making him no king who is already one. And pray what hath this to do in the prefent cafe? We neither mean to fet up nor to put down, neither so suake nor to unmake, but to have nothing to do with them. Where:fore, your teftimony in whatever light it is viewed ferves only to difhonor your judgement, and for many other reafons had better have been let alone than publifhed.

$$
A P B E N D I X O \quad 6 i
$$

iff. Becaufe it tends to the decreafe and reproach of all religion whatever, and is of the utmott danger to fociety, ta. make it a patty in political difputes.

2dly, Becaure it exhibits a body of men, numbers of whom difavow the publifhing political teftimonies, as be: ing concerned therein and approvers thereof.

3dly, Becaufe it hath a tendency to undo that continend. tal harmony and friend thip which yourfeives by your late lis. beral and charitable donations have lent a hand to eftablifh: and the prefervation of which, is of the utmoft confequence to us all.

And here without anger or refentment I bid you farewel Sincerely wifhing, that as men and chriftians, ye may alo ways fully and uninterruptedly enjoy every civil and religious right ; and be, in your turn, the means of fecuring it to others; but that the example which ye have unvirely ret $_{9}$ of mingling religion with poitics, may be difavowed and ref: grobatod by cevery inbabitant of AMERICA.

P 1 I $

Fzick
THE

'American Patriot's Prayer.

PARENT of all, omnipotent In heav' $n$, and earth below, Thro' all creation's bounds unfpent, Whole ftreams of goodnefs flow.
[reach me to know from whence I rofe; And unto what defign'd; No private aims let me propofe, Since link'd with human kind.

But chief to hear my country's voice, May all my thoughts inclise, ${ }^{2}$ TTis reafon's law, "tis virtue's choice, 'Tis nature's call, and thine.

Me from fair freedom's facred caufe, Let nothing e'er divide ;
Grandeur, nor gold, nor vain applaufe, Nor friendflitp falle mifguide.

Let me not faction's parcial hate, Purfue to this land's woe:
Nor grafp the thunder of the fates To wound a private foe.

If, for the right, to wilh the wrong; My country thall combine,
Single to ferve th' erron'ous throng, Spight of themfelves, be mine.

$$
\begin{aligned}
& -31036- \\
& \text { Mag. } 1952^{2}=
\end{aligned}
$$

$\operatorname{cop}^{2} y^{2}$ Weld tor siza and condition

$$
\begin{aligned}
& \text { D776 } \\
& \text { Pi4felo } \\
& \text { cop. } 2
\end{aligned}
$$

[^0]:    *. Maffacre at Lexingtor.

[^1]:    * Thofe who would fully underfiand of ewhat great confepuence a large and equal reprefentation is to a pate, bould read Burgh's politigal Dijquiftions.

